—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Feb. 2.

THE EMPLOYERS' right to hire whom they choose, on what terms they can arrange, is perhaps sacred.

The right of workers to unite and strive by force of numbers, within the law, to better their condition, is undoubtedly sacred.

But the right of the people to regulate employment and labor in any way necessary to end the depression and prevent destructive strikes or lockouts, hampering efforts at recovery, is a right infinitely more important than the other two.

FIVE THOUSAND on strike in the Briggs plant in Detroit automatically force 45,000 other workers in the Ford plant to go idle through no fault of Ford or the 45,000 workers. If nothing is done that situation will be repeated wherever there are signs of renewed employment, and something must be done.

One small strike called with the best of intentions, should not be allowed to deprive 45,000 men of work.

The people, through their government, should have something to say about it. Government had plenty to say when the war was on, taking men from ten-dollar-a-day jobs, putting them to work in foreign trenches for one dollar a day.

THIS DEPRESSION IS A WAR. Bigger, for us, than the other.

THIS IS written on the Seaboard Air Line, a few hours north of Miami, in Southern Florida, where influenza germs have as poor a chance as Napoleon on St. Helena.

Southern Florida is convenient, only one night's sleep from New York, and Florida is fortunate in having two railroads, the Seaboard Air Line and the Atlantic Coast Line, that, in spite of depression, an exploded boom, receiverships and other troubles, continue furnishing excellent transportation at high speed.

The airplane will soon do for California and the Gulf Coast what the fast transcontinental railroads cannot do, cutting the ocean-to-ocean and North to Gulf trips to one day.

GALSWORTHY IS dead because he allowed a "common cold" to drag until it produced anaemia that killed him.

If he had gone to Southern California, any one of a hundred resorts along our Gulf Coast, down to Florida, or taken a shorter trip to the north coast of Africa, he might have stopped his "cold" and lived twenty years longer.

FLYING MACHINE and automobile are here. The automobile makes it possible to travel at less than half the cost of railroad fare. Flying machines will divide the time and cost of automobile travel by five.

Men for a million years have watched birds flying, and now MEN FLY.

Men have watched birds migrating to warm climates, and in centuries to come they will migrate, tens of millions of them, flying from North to South in winter as a matter of course. To many that sounds ridiculous. Steam engine, airplane, telegraph, radio, would once have sounded just as ridiculous.

THERE IS a happy man outside this car window. He has cleared with his hands and a hoe a small patch of black Florida land, now covered with growing vegetables. He and his wife are clearing more land, while their vegetables grow. They have knocked together a shack that will keep out all but the heaviest rains, and they OWN A PIECE OF THE EARTH.

Eventually they may have to give up, as so many others have done. In our civilization dollars rule and men count for little. But their small patch of ground could feed 10 families in cities and it is a pity that the national intelligence has not worked out a plan that would make it possible to cultivate the earth, in peace and with profit.

THIS IS strawberry time in Florida. Plant City is shipping strawberries by the trainload, four million pint baskets thus far shipped. The growers have received $340,000.

The price of baskets, planting, care, picking, transportation must come out of 8½ cents a basket, but, comparatively, they are fortunate farmers.

IN KNOXVILLE, Tenn., you may buy two dozen fresh eggs for twenty-five cents. In smaller places near Knoxville you get THREE dozen for twenty-five cents.

There is something wrong about distribution, which includes transportation, middlemen, rent and cost of financing.

If an egg, as alleged, has the food value of a half pound of beefsteak, eggs, three dozen for 25 cents, would mean beefsteak at less than one cent and a half a pound.

AT JACKSONVILLE a marathon dance is ending. Young men and girls trying to earn a little money have spent 100 days and nights in continuous dancing, sleeping only a quarter of an hour at a time.

Month after month the young dancers have struggled on, the 98 starters dwindling gradually down to five couples that remain.

Spectators ask:

"How do they stand it?"

A more pertinent question is:

"What sort of human beings are they that pay for the 'pleasure' of seeing others suffer?"

Man is a mean animal, al-

SCHOOL LEVY CURB ASKED IN COURT

Limit of Eight Mills Sought in Protest Of Taxpayers

A bill in equity asking the court to restrain the School District of Pittsburgh from collecting more than 8 mills taxes on real estate for 1933 is to be filed by three taxpayers, Frank S. Delp, Frank E. Shaughnessy and Thomas F. Breen, in Common Pleas Court today. The school tax is 11¾ mills.

Should the court uphold the contention of the taxpayers more than $3,000,000 would be lopped out of the school budget which has been set for this year by the Board of Public Education at $13,735,110.

The bill also names Richard W. Thompson, school treasurer, and asks a mandatory injunction to force restitution to all who have paid their school taxes for the current year in excess of eight mills.

All of the complainants are affiliated with the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers' League, which has brought continual pressure against the School Board for lower taxes.

Spokesmen for the group today declared they are not against the present school system, but hope to preserve the system as it is now constituted.

The bill of complaint alleges school taxes are being levied in violation of the school code in that the School Board is carrying reserves such as a large sum in the general fund and the fire insurance fund instead of using the money to reduce taxes.

It is contended that an eight-mill tax is sufficient to meet the Board's obligations, if it uses its reserves and practices economy.

The Board's reserve in the general fund amounted to $1,126,064, but of that amount, $460,110 was to be used in meeting this year's expenditures.

Attorneys for the complainants are A. G. Smith, Harry Shapera and Morris M. Berger.

'CRUCIFY ME IF I FAIL' —HITLER

Germany's New Chief Opens War on Communists

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Adolf Hitler, four days chancellor of Germany, challenged his countrymen today to "crucify me or do anything else to me if at the end of four years we have not succeeded."

In his first press conference as chancellor, he told a group of newspapermen:

"The other side had things all their own way for 14 years. Look at the result!

"Give us four years—that's the legal period of a Reichstag—and then let the country sit in judgment."

COMMUNISTS RAIDED

Meanwhile, by order of Chancellor Hitler, Police in all parts of Prussia invaded Communist meeting places, and in some cases the homes of suspected Communists today, seizing papers and arresting their owners in an effort to put an end to disorders which have cost nearly a dozen lives since the Nazi chief became head of the government.

Before his press conference, the Chancellor, accompanied by Wilhelm Frick, his minister of the interior, appeared before the Reichsrat, upper house of parliament, shook hands with each member and spoke from the presidential dais. He said:

"It required great faith in our nation for me to take over the government in these grave times, but I face the future with great hope."

Hitler's first appeal for a parliamentary majority in elections set for March 5 found Germany seething with political animosity.

The tense situation reached a climax with Hitler's announcement of two four-year plans of national regeneration—for the "salvation" of the farmer and the worker.

HITLER CONFIDENT

The stocky little Nazi leader was supremely confident of victory after his cabinet, in which Nationalists far outnumber his party colleagues, persuaded President von Hindenburg to permit the new elections.

In an interview with American and English correspondents, Hitler said:

"I hope the people of the world realize what's going on in Germany. There can be no middle course here. Either the red flag of Bolshevism will be hoisted soon or Germany will find herself again."

The chancellor's nation-wide appeal last night for a "four-year chance," in which he attacked the Republican parties, met with a

An Honest Warning To Foreign Debtors

THE VOICE of the American people was heard in the Senate on Tuesday.

The subject was the war debts.

The growing apprehension caused by the unabated and suspect activity of President Hoover and his expiring administration, and the persistence with which their oft-rejected counsels in this matter are still urged, found expression in grave and timely words.

Nor were the recent utterances of the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the activities of the British Ambassador on the eve of his departure for England, overlooked in enumerating the reasons for this uneasiness.

"Let America be on guard," said the Democratic Senator from Illinois, J. Hamilton Lewis, "against the underground movements that are all around us and which in their mystery mean danger for friendships with nations and losses in money and property to the United States."

SENATOR HATFIELD, of West Virginia, addressed himself to the recent declaration by England's Chancellor of the Exchequer that his government would appoint representatives to discuss the war debts with us ONLY ON CONDITION that no other subjects be discussed.

Speaking of Great Britain as not only owing us billions of dollars, but "under an obligation to us which she can never repay in money," Senator Hatfield resented the fact that she should presume to lay down conditions upon which she would consent to discuss her debts.

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, alluding to the reports from Warm Springs—WHICH HAPPILY ARE UNCONFIRMED—indicating that the President-elect was considering tenders from nations in default, observed significantly that it would only mean EXCHANGING ONE PROMISE THAT IS NO GOOD FOR ONE THAT IS NO BETTER.

He added a word of caution against any agreement concerning the debts, with which CONGRESS SHOULD NOT BE IN ACCORD, as calculated to gravely WEAKEN the MORAL OBLIGATION behind the debts.

THE WARNING is honestly uttered, as Congress has already declared it to be against the policy of Congress that any of the indebtedness of foreign countries to the United States should IN ANY MANNER be cancelled or reduced.

Congress has furthermore announced that no favorable consideration will be given at any time to a CHANGE in this policy.

Tuesday's speeches show that the Senate is alert to each passing development on this subject.

This is as it should be!

THE PEOPLE of the United States made these loans.

If the debtors who borrowed the money do not repay it, THE PEOPLE of the United States will have to pay it.

If, as the result of "UNDERGROUND MOVEMENTS," as Senator Lewis describes the tireless propaganda for debt remission, our debtors are relieved of their obligations, or a bungling adjustment is reached, to the prejudice of America's rights, it is the PEOPLE of the United States who will suffer.

The question is for THEM to decide, and FOR NO ONE ELSE!

Senator Lewis, Senator Reed and Senator Hatfield spoke not only for themselves.—THEY VOICED THE THOUGHT AND THE FEELINGS OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

VAST POWER PROJECT IN VIEW

Flood Control, Jobs For Thousands On Program

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Feb. 2.—President-elect Roosevelt today revealed the outline of a gigantic project—almost visionary in character—upon which he has been working for weeks, that would make a modern Utopia out of the whole region stretching from the mountains of Virginia to the Gulf of Mexico.

Admitting it will constitute the greatest social and economic experiment in history, Mr. Roosevelt announced he proposes to utilize the Tennessee River basin as a vast national laboratory in which to combine the five elements of agricultural development, flood control, power development, reclamation and reforestation into a single co-ordinated movement to improve American life.

FORSEES RESULTS

If Congress will sanction the project, Mr. Roosevelt forsees:

1—Employment for 200,000 men within a year after operation is started.

2—Development of from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 primary horsepower.

3—Electricity for the consumer at 2½ cents a kilowatt hour.

4—Reclamation of many thousands of acres of rich bottom lands.

5—Saving of millions of dollars flood damage.

6—Elimination of "marginal" lands upon which poor crops are grown with an ensuing placement of the poorer farmer on fertile soil.

JURY STILL OUT IN POISON PLOT

The jury in the Munhall "poison plot" case scanned the evidence today, the fate of two women in the balance.

Approaching 24 hours of deliberation without a verdict, the jury gave no intimation of the course of its examination of the evidence, other than to obtain exhibits offered during the trial by both state and defense.

The five women and seven men could return any of five verdicts against Mrs. Mary Chalfa, 31, and Mrs. Anna Allas, 39, the Munhall women tried on charges of poisoning Mrs. Allas' stepson, Stephen, 12.

Appeals to Block Borough Paying Him $31,000

ALTOONA, Pa., Feb. 2.—Jacob Drass, merchant, has appealed to the Superior Court to prevent the Borough of Hollidaysburg from paying him $31,000. Judge Marion D. Patterson told Drass, who had loaned $48,000, he would have to accept the offer of the borough, but he took only $17,000. In 1928 the borough consolidated all its loans by borrowing $48,000 from Drass at 5 per cent. Previously he held borough notes for $11,500 at 6 per cent. He refused to accept new notes and demanded bonds. In two installments the borough had tendered $31,000 and interest, and the court ruled that the interest would stop on the dates the tenders were made.

SENATOR'S LIFE THREATENED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—The life of Senator George McGill (Dem.), of Kansas, was threatened at his home last night, police revealed today.

The intruder, who escaped, pointed a double-barreled shotgun at the Senator as he sat at the dinner table with his wife and daughter. He did not fire.

Hearing a noise outside the French window, Senator McGill told police, he opened it to see the barrel end of the gun pointed at him and wavering. The Senator said he quickly switched off the lights of the room, and then heard someone run from the place.

Search by police indicated that a man had crouched beneath the McGill window.

Police advanced the theory that the intruder was bent upon robbery.

Groundhog Predicts Six More Weeks of Winter

The groundhog saw his shadow today and wryly predicted six more weeks of winter and prohibition. Then he went back to sleep.

It was a sedentary specimen that shook off the laziness of 12 months, grunted once, twice and crawled out of his hole at Gobbler's Knob, Punxsutawney, to cast a good, clear shadow. Said he in an exclusive statement to all the afternoon newspapers in America:

"That's the best shadow I've cast in a long time and it means you boys 'll still be ice-skating in March. Those smart alecks that are still wearing shorts are in for a surprise."

Only a handful of curious reported at 9:31 a. m. to see what they could see—so small a handful that the Groundhog recalled those so-called good old days before prohibition when a fellow was lucky to get standing room on Gobbler's Knob.

Less concerned about the weather was Jimmie, a groundhog, whose master is Frank E. Richards, of Brushton. Jimmie, a native of Reynoldsville, is less than a year old and, being a modern groundhog, has shown little faith in the predictions of the older generation of groundhogs.

But withal her youth Jimmie today scored one on the Punxsutawney veteran—she went on the air. Over the Globe Trotter's first news broadcast on WCAE Jimmie sent the kind of sounds which are peculiar to groundhogs—sounds which caused the Globe Trotter, Louis L. Kaufman, to announce:

"There is no truth to the rumor that a groundhog did not assist me on the radio today."

The broadcast finished, Jimmie asked for her fan mail, then dropped down to Weatherman Brotzman's office, where Mr Brotzman kindly consented to argue the weather—an argument he no doubt now regrets.

A groundhog is never wrong.

Brown Murdered, Expert Declares

MT. HOLLY, N. J., Feb. 2.—(INS.)—After examination of the gun and bullets that killed Bradway Brown, found dead in his home at Palmyra, January 16, J. W. Pelletreau, a Buffalo ballistics and fingerprint expert, today said he was convinced that Brown "was murdered."

Pelletreau told Ellis H. Parker, chief of the Burlington County detectives, the position of the wounds made it clear that they were not self-inflicted and that marks on Brown's shirt indicated he had been dragged several feet after he was shot.

Groundhog Killed By Spring Weather

Pittsburgh Woman Weds Cronkhite

A Pittsburgh woman today was the bride of Maj. Gen. Adelbert Cronkhite, who in the World War commanded the Eightieth Division, which included many Pittsburghers.

The bride is Miss Gertrude Horne, of Ruggles street, North Side.

When they wehe married today in St. Patrick's Church in Washington, D. C., Miss Horne gave her age as 47. The general is 72.

They were to have been united by the Rev. Father Edward A. Wallace, who was a chaplain of the Eightieth, but the priest's illness is believed to have altered this plan.

The couple met at the reunion of the 80th Division in Pittsburgh. Miss Horne was an organizer of the Division's Ladies' Auxiliary.

Attendants for the wedding were Miss Horne's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Shumaker.

The bride's mother, Mrs. J. L. Horne, said today that she had met the general when he was here in January for his birthday party. She said the newlyweds plan to live in Hampton, Va.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—Gen. Augustino Sandino, Nicaraguan rebel who has fought for years against American intervention in this country, arrived here unexpectedly by airplane today to launch peace negotiations with President Moncada.

BULLITT ARREST DEMANDED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—The immediate apprehension, arrest and trial of William C. Bullitt, who has been reported acting abroad for President-Elect Roosevelt on debts, for alleged violation of the Logan Act, was demanded in the Senate this afternoon by Senator Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana.

The Indiana Republican charged Bullitt was violating the Logan Act by conferring with officials of foreign governments on issues in dispute with the United States. He read the law, which apparently forbids such conferences as Bullitt has been reported to have held with British and French officials.

The Logan act prohibits any American citizen "without permission or authority of his government, to carry on any written or verbal correspondence with any foreign government or any minister thereof with an intent to influence the measures of any foreign government in relation to any dispute with the United States."

Conviction for violation of the act would be punished by a $5,000 fine.

Robinson read press dispatches describing Bullitt's visits to Lon-

Coraopolis Tax Chief Reads Bible, Ends Life

Harry A. Lach, tax collector of Coraopolis, wrote letters, read the Bible, wrote his will and then ended his life by firing a bullet into his head in the Algonquin Hotel in Cumberland, Md., early today, according to the police there.

In the will, which was in legal form, but not attested, he left his estate to his wife, from whom he has been separated for three years, and to two children.

The wife, Mrs. Lillian Lach, who has been living in Mt. Lebanon with their two children, planned to leave for Cumberland to claim the body.

She was to have met Lach last night in Mt. Lebanon, but he failed to appear, it was said.

Lach was registered under an assumed name. In several of the notes he left he indicated he was contemplating suicide.

In another note Lach quoted from the third chaper of Ecclesiastics, at which page the Bible in his room was left open. In a letter addressed to Robert J. Lindsay, of Coraopolis, Lach lamented the "havoc this depression has wrought."

American Lieutenant Charges Attempt at Intimidation

International News Service.

PEIPING, Feb. 2.—An alleged attempt by a Japanese sentry to intimidate Lieut. Robert Scidmore, U. S. M. C., a native of Indianapolis, was investigated today by Col. L. M. Gulick, senior commandant of the Marine legation guards here.

Col. Gulick is studying the incident to determine whether it warrants official representations.

Lieut. Scidmore, intelligence officer of the Marine Corps guard attached to the legation, reported that while he was walking along a public road in front of the Japanese legation, a Japanese sentry suddenly stuck out his rifle and held the bayonet within three inches of Scidmore's stomach.

Scidmore said he shoved the bayoneted rifle aside and passed on. As he proceeded, he told Col. Gulick, the sentry shouted after him in Japanese. Lieut. Scidmore said he believed the sentry had indulged in profanity.

CHRISTIANS PERILED

SHANGHAI, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—Threatening to kill all Christians, 60,000 Chinese Communists under the rebel commander, Gen. Kwang, occupied Paoning, a large city in Szechuen province, today.

When reports of the city's capture reached here officials expressed great concern at what was termed a serious threat to the northern part of the province.

Chinese missionaries inland have evacuated the threatened districts, fleeing to Chengtu. The government immediately rushed troops to Paoning.

Officials here expressed belief the Reds were enabled to advance owing to civil strife raging in the province between rival war lords.

It was also declared discontent among the people, who have been forced to pay taxes up to 70 years in advance, may have aided the Communists.

FIGHT FOR ISLANDS

TOKIO, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Confronted by the prospect of secession from the League of Nations, which would involve the question of equatorial Pacific Islands held under the league mandate, Japan's determination was becoming manifest today to retain the islands regardless of possible attempts in Geneva to reassume suzerainty.

The islands, lying between the United States and the Philippines, figure prominently in the Navy's plans for domination of the Western Pacific and although Admiral Osumi, minister of the Navy, evaded direct questions as to whether the islands would be retained, the strongest insistence on their retention originated in naval circles.

Three States Get Loans From R. F. C.

when the jury was given the case at 6 o'clock last night were:

1—Murder in first degree with death.

2—Murder in first degree with life imprisonment.

3—Second degree murder.

4—Voluntary manslaughter.

5—Not guilty.

JUDGE LEAVES

Court was reopened last night at 7:30 p. m. and continued until 10 p. m., awaiting a verdict which was not reached. If the jurors agree their verdict will be returned before some other judge serving in Criminal Court, as Judge Graff stated he has an engagement in Mercer County Court today.

At 11:30 a. m. the jury obtained exhibits consisting of applications for life insurance, reports of County Chemist F. C. Buckmaster, who examined the bodies of Stephen Allas and his brother, Andrew, 16, and a letter to the coroner from Dr. Charles C. Huff, physician who attended Stephen. While the women were indicted in connection with the deaths of both boys, they were tried only on the charge of killing Stephen.

Assistant District Attorney John Haggerty asked for a first degree murder verdict in his final address to the jury last night. He said:

"You have no right to consider that these two defendants are women. In criminal law there is no sex, race or color. We think we have showed you a plot existed from the time Mrs. Chalfa asked Dr. Zeok for poison."

DENOUNCES WOMEN

Pointing his finger at the defendants, Haggerty shouted:

"They started in October, 1931. Steve was dead in December. Then they pyramided the insurance they collected on Steve. Richard Duyva, the baby, died in March, 1932, and Andrew in April the same year—three deaths in five months.

"If it wasn't for the diabolical actions of these two she-devils, to collect insurance, three children would be alive now."

In a dramatic plea of three hours, Attorney Louis Little attempted to break down the state's contention that the defendants had administered poison to Stephen, declaring that only the word of Mrs. Gizella Young could be taken to that effect. He charged her with being a "witch" and practicing witchcraft on both Mrs. Chalfa and Mrs. Allas, placing them under her control.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 2.—(INS.)—A bitter battle to extradite Col. Luke Lea to North Carolina, where he has been sentenced to prison for violating banking laws, was started before Gov. Hill McAlister today.

PANTHER HUNT FOR WRIGHT

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Denver Wright, Missouri sportsman, whose "synthetic" lion hunts atracted nationwide attention, will be invited to participate in a wild panther hunt in the vicinity of Saucier, Miss., next month, to be staged by state game wardens.

State Director of Conservation Hunter Kimball, in making public plans for ridding the Saucier section of panthers which recently have terrorized farmers and menaced stock in that vicinity, said he would invite Wright to join the hunt.

One or more pairs of large panthers, which once infested down state backwoods, but which are now nearly extinct in Mississippi, have been sighted in Jackson County recently. One beast sauntered into a farm yard and was frightened off just as it was about to attack a farmer's child near Saucier.

SUES FARMERS OVER BALKED MORTGAGE

1,000 Growers Halt Foreclosures on Land Of Widow

URBANA, Ill., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Frustrated by farmers who paid $4.90 for farm property mortgaged at $2,750 and then kept possession by force, W. A. Doss, of Monticello, whose wife held the mortgage, brought suit in Champaign County Court today to recover the property.

The writ of replevin lay in a muddy road on the farm of C. B. Grady, near Ivesdale, Champaign County, where the sale took place Tuesday. It had been issued in Piatt County, Doss' home.

Doss, an attorney, today got a new replevin in the name of Mrs. Doss in Campaign County.

Armed with notice of this writ, Sheriff Fred Shoaf went to Ivesdale with three trucks and deputies to seize the mortgage property on Brady's place.

All of the property which had gone for enforced bids of 5, 6 and 10 cents for cows, horses and wagons, was still on the farm. Neighbors yesterday met at Brady's farm, quietly unhitched a team of horses and otherwise hindered removal of the chattels.

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—Compromise measures to put a temporary halt to foreclosures on mortgaged farms were under consideration today in the Middle West as additional corn belt farmers resorted to means of force to prevent foreclosures.

In the Iowa Legislature the House and Senate each has put forth a mortgage arbitration bill.

At Cherokee, Okla., 1,000 farmers persuaded a representative of the Equitable Life Assurance Society to leave the city, thus preventing the Sheriff's sale to auction off the farm of Mrs. Julia Jobes, a widow.

Gov. Miriam A. "Ma" Ferguson yesterday was requested to work out a plan of suspending farm mortgage foreclosures pending the passage of relief legislation by the House of Representatives.

The Kansas Senate was considering the problems of the farmer who has mortgaged property, while police continued their investigation of the murder of Luther D. Marr, Kansas City real estate dealer, who was killed after conducting a farm mortgage sale at Mound City.

BAN ON CARRIER LOANS FOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Testimony by Joseph B. Eastman, member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, that further federal loans to railroads should be made was viewed today by some as likely to block Senate adoption of a resolution to prohibit further advances.

Appearing before a Senate banking sub-mommittee, Eastman spoke optimistically of the carriers' future and urged the extension of additional government credit through the Reconstruction Corporation. The opinion of Eastman is held highly in Congressional circles.

Senator Couzens (Rep.), Michigan, sponsored the resolution. He contends that many roads are facing receiverships which may mean heavy losses to the government if the loans are continued.

The committee's hearings were put off today pending a report from the Reconstruction Corporation on the present value of collateral securing the rail advances.

Betrothed Princess Returns to Her Job

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—After eight days of betrothal festivities, Princess Caroline Mathide, who is engaged to marry Prince Knud, nephew of the King of Denmark, went back to work today in a photographer's studio.

stormy response. The Social Democratic organ, Vorwaerts, scathingly criticized the speech, declaring his "four-year plan is a new catchword borrowed from Stalin." It concluded, addressing Hitler, with the demand:

"Out with you!"

Other newspapers were silent on Hitler's reiteration of his often proclaimed remedies for the country. The Nationalist papers welcomed the election, on the ground that it was the first time a clear line has been drawn between the Rightest parties and the "Bolshevists."

The Nazi chieftain spoke only in general terms of his two four-year terms. He described one as the "Salvation of the German farmer, to safeguard the nation's possibilities of sustenance and hence her very life," and the other the "Salvation of the German worker through a collosal and comprehensive attack on unemployment."

He appealed for divine guidance for the men called to head the new government and asked the nation to withhold judgment for four years.

His old campaign demands for building up the national defense were toned down in a declaration re-affirming the stand of previous cabinets for juridicial equality with other nations in arms.

Concluding a bitter attack on Communism, the Chancellor asserted that christianity would be the basis of Germany's moral conceptions. He declared the family would be firmly protected.

President Von Hindenburg's decree dissolving the German Reichstag was signed yesterday at exactly 8:35 p. m., Berlin time, or 2:35 p. m., Pittsburgh time. Reports of the dissolution of the Reichstag printed before that time, consequently, were based purely on conjecture. The Sun-Telegraph did not print any such reports.

FEDERAL MEN AID IN TAKING RECEPTACLES

Custodianship Seized From Squires; Rees Takes Charge

Collection of every ballot box in the county began today with the impounding of those in which the federal government is interested.

Trucks, on each of which were federal men, were sent first to the Third, Fourth, Tenth and Fifteenth wards, which are in the Thirty-second Congressional District, and the North Side wards from the Twenty-first to Twenty-seventh inclusive, which are in the Thirtieth District. The election of Congressmen in both districts is being contested, accounting for the federal interest in the boxes.

The boxes are being collected under a court order granted by President Judge James R. Macfarlane in Common Pleas Court.

Director William T. Rees, of the Bureau of Elections, was appointed by Judge Macfarlane as custodian of the boxes after they are centralized in the sub-basement of the new county building.

HELD RESPONSIBLE

All justices of the peace and aldermen who signed for boxes placed in their care after the election November 8 were to be held personally responsible for the boxes as county employes began serving copies of the court order. Records in the Controller's office have been scrutinized during the last week to determine what aldermen and justices of the peace signed for boxes and how many were left in their custody.

In previous years it has been the practice of many squires to sign for boxes on election day and let the election boards deliver them the next day to the office of the appointed custodians. In some cases the boxes are left in school buildings and election places without ever being turned over to the squire.

The pay sheets of election boards filed in the Controller's office bear the signature of the persons in whose custody the boxes are placed. From these records the collectors will be able to tell where to go for the box.

The court order was obtained yesterday through the joint work of the Federal Government, the County Commissioners and the Election Frauds Committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association.

MANY COPIES MADE

It was granted by Judge Macfarlane after a private conference with First Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh, Assistant County Solicitor Ralph Frank and Attorney E. Lowry Humes, representing the bar association committee. Attorney Frank presented the petition in behalf of the Commissioners. Immediately after the order had been signed, several hundred copies were made to be served on the aldermen and justices today.

The action yesterday will strip aldermen and justices of the peace the power they held in previous elections. The County Commissioners are planning legislation which will designate the judge of election to convey the ballot box to headquarters immediately after the count has been finished election night. The box would be delivered when the records of the election board were left at the office of the Commissioners or Prothonotary.

1,700 TO COLLECT

The room in the basement of the county office building is a large, windowless chamber. One of its two doors has been closed so that the one remaining can be sealed and guarded. There are about 200 ballot boxes now in the office of the sheriff. There will be about 1,700 boxes to collect.

The action yesterday followed investigation of more than two months. While the federal government is interested only in the boxes from the two Congressional districts where investigations are under way, Marsh is cooperating with Humes' committee and the investigators of the county commissioners.

County investigators declared yesterday that the apparent failure of the district attorney's office to take action to prosecute alleged night riders or others responsible for irregularities at the November election, had spurred the Commissioners to action.

Emmons, Rail Executive, W. U. P. Grad, Dies

Charles DeMoss Emmons, former Pittsburgher and president of the Hudson-Manhattan Railway Company, died early today at his home in New York, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Mr. Emmons, prominent in transportation circles, was 61. Born in Lafayette, Ind., Mr. Emmons came to Pittsburgh while a boy and attended the Bellefield Grade and Central High schools. He started his career here in 1892 after graduating from the old Western University of Pennsylvania, now the University of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Emmons was married twice. His first wife was Miss Edith Bertha Ewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Ewart, of Pittsburgh, who died in 1920. Six children survive this union, including Mrs. Raymond P. Pennoyer, of 5660 Beacon street, Squirrel Hill. Mr. Emmons married Mrs. Sadie Ramsey Ferre, widow of Dr. Robert Ferre, of Pittsburgh, in 1923, who also survives.

Mr. Emmons joined the Pennsylvania Railroad here upon graduation, remaining three years. He then became general superintendent of the Lafayette Street Railways Company. Mr. Emmons later was general manager of the Fort Wayne and Wabash Street Railway Company, second vice president and general manager of the Boston and Worcester Street Railway Company, and general manager of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, which position he left to become president of the United Railways and Electric Company of Baltimore.

R. F. C. Plays Favorites, Senator Charges

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Close behind a recommendation by the President of the Reconstruction Corporation that $150,000,000 more be provided for relief loans to staes, Senator Lewis (Dem.), of Illinois, charged today before a Senate committee that there had been discrimination in administering relief funds.

Charles A. Miller, the corporation president, indorsed generally the Wagner bill to liberalize the law under which relief is administered. He defended the $90,000,000 loan to the Dawes bank in Chicago as having averted "disaster."

Lewis, speaking after several others had approved the Wagner bill, said the government seemed blin dto the danger of revolution and that certain members of the corporation's board had tried to obstruct relief to "those of humble society" and allowed precedence to "those formerly of power."

Warning that additional funds are needed, Miller added that one state is within six weeks of exhaustion of its quota which under the present law is $45,000,000. He did not name the state, but committee members understood he referred to Illinois, which has borrowed about $23,000,000.

Meanwhile, Stephen Raushenbush—director of industrial relations for Pennsylvania—told the Senate Manufacturers' Committee that federal relief money was being distributed "in such a way as to help tear down the economic structure."

Testifying for the La Follette-Costigan bill to provide $500,000,000 for direct grants to states, he said that "many of the substandard or sweatshop plants are, in effect, being subsidized by federal, state and private relief funds."

JIGSAW PUZZLE CLUE TO SLAYERS OF DRUGGIST HERE

FINGERPRINTS SOUGHT AFTER MURDER

East End Druggist Killed in Battle With Gunman

While police and detectives continued their city-wide search today for a youthful bandit pair who fatally wounded Charles F. Huber, 66, in a gun battle during an attempted holdup of his drug store at 560 Paulson avenue last night, bertillon operators at the City Detective Bureau were examining a jig-saw puzzle box for fingerprints of the gunmen.

Huber, shot in the chest and right hand, died early today in Belvedere Hospital.

He opened fire on the bandits when, from the prescription room, he saw his son, Harry G. Huber, 31, grapple with one of them. A bullet from the revolver of the bandit with whom he was struggling grazed the fingers on Huber's right hand.

GUN DUEL IN STORE

As the pair fled from the store the elder Huber continued to fire. The gunmen returned the fire, two of their bullets felling Huber.

The bandits leaped into an automobile and sped into Shetland avenue. The younger Huber ran into the street, spreading an alarm. Albert Salvio, 21, of 631 Winfield street, attracted by the cries, picked up two milk bottles and hurled them at the machine just as it turned into Shetland avenue, police said.

The victim was carried to the hospital across the street from the drug store. The son had his wounded hand dressed at the hospital and returned to the drug store to relate the shooting for police and detectives.

He said:

"Dad was sitting in the prescription room when the two men entered. They ordered sodas and when they finished them they walked to the magazine rack and picked up a jig-saw puzzle.

"One of the men walked to the counter and handed me a $1 bill for sodas and the puzzle. When I rang up the sale on the register, he pulled out a revolver and said: 'Stick 'em up!' Before he uttered the last word of his command, I grabbed his revolver and in the struggle it was discharged. I guess the bullet grazed my fingers.

TELLS OF KILLING

"My Dad, attracted by the shot, ran from the rear room with a revolver in his hand. By this time the man with whom I was fighting broke loose from me and, with his companion, started for the door when Dad fired four shots at him. They shot back and Dad fell to the floor."

Fleeing, the pair dropped the jig-saw puzzle box. On it Homicide Detectives Robert Carroll and James O'Kane hoped would be found the fingerprints of the gunmen.

Harry Huber looked over scores of photographs of men arrested for holdups, but was unable to identify any.

Police said the descriptions of the gunmen tallied with those of the two who herded the proprietor and six customers into the back room of the Jackson pharmacy, at 901 North St. Clair street, Tuesday night.

In the Jackson store they also sipped sodas before "covering" their victims with revolvers.

SEEK TO CANCEL SUBWAY BONDS

City Controller James P. Kerr is seeking to have the city's $6,000,000 subwaybond issue canceled through state legislation to remove the burden on the municipal borrowing power.

The bond issue, voted by the people in 1919, is unsold, with the exception of $120,000 for engineering expenses. Controller Kerr has already conferred with Allegheny County legislators on framing a bill to eliminate the issue.

The necessity for putting the city borrowing power in shape to meet the needs of any emergency which may arise, including the possible readjustment of city assessments, was cited by Controller Kerr. Any subway built now would would need to be on a larger scale, and hence would have to be submitted again to the people, he stated.

Is She 'Kidding?'

MARIAN NIXON . . . HER HUSBAND: "SOMEBODY'S KIDDING"

Miss Nixon, whose "professional incompatibility" divorce suit against Edward Hillman, Jr., wealthy young Chicagoan, brought forth a "I don't believe it!" She's also seeking an injunction to keep him away from their mansion in Beverly Hills, film colony.

MARION NIXON ASKS DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Marian Nixon, screen actress has filed suit for divorce against Edward Hillman, Jr., son of a Chicago merchant, obtaining a temporary order restraining Hillman from entering the couple's Beverly Hills home or from molesting her.

Her complaint charges Hillman with using abusive language toward her and indulging excessively in intoxicants on occasions to the detriment of her work. It asserts on last Thanksgiving he struck her.

The actress asks no alimony, despite the fact her husband is reported to have a large income from a trust fund. The complaint revealed no property settlement has been effected.

Hillman appeared to be shocked when told the divorce complaint had been filed. He exclaimed:

"I can't believe it!"

Miss Nixon and Hillman were married in Chicago Aug. 11, 1929. She was divorced from her first husband, Joe Benjamin, boxer.

Weather Conditions.

Disturbance, yesterday over Wisconsin, developed eastward, and is now central over Eastern Ontario, having caused light rains or snows over the lakes and eastern states. Another secondary center remains over Northern Texas and Northern Louisiana, but is as yet rather inactive. High pressure overlies the Far West (Seattle, 30.44 inches), and relatively high pressure covers the East Gulf states. Weather is generally fair over most of the country this morning, except for scattered light snows in the upper lakes, the northern plains and the Northern Rocky Mountains. It is colder in the lake region, the Ohio and Upper Mississippi valleys, and warmer in New England.

BONFILS, NOTED PUBLISHER, DIES AT 72

Cold and Operation Fatal to Owner of Denver Post

International News Service.

DENVER, Feb. 2.—F. G. Bonfils, 72, owner and publisher of the Denver Post, died at his home early today following a brief illness.

Bonfils was taken ill last week and subjected to a minor operation Saturday. Yesterday he suffered a relapse.

A bad cold, which settled in his ear, brought on the fatal illness.

OXYGEN ADMINISTERED

Oxygen was administered late last night in an effort to revive Bonfils. Shortly after midnight the Rev. Hugh L. McMenamin, pastor of the Immaculate Conception Cathedral, was called to the home, where he spent considerable time. Mrs. Bonfils, the widow, and a daughter, Helen, are members of the Catholic Church. They and several other members of the immediate family were at the bedside when death accurred.

The death of Bonfils brings to a close one of the most colorful careers in newspaper history in the West. With Harry H. Tammen, Bonfils purchased the Denver Post in October, 1895. The newspaper was established in 1892. It has been an outstanding force in public affairs in the Rocky Mountain region for more than 30 years.

Activities of the Denver Post resulted in uncovering the Teapot Dome oil scandal a decade ago. The Post's investigators uncovered leads which led to the Congressional investigations.

CAREER IN WEST

Bonfils is survived, in addition to the widow, by two daughters, Helen and Mrs. Mae Berryman, of Denver, and two brothers, Charles, an editor of the Post, and Thomas, District Court clerk here, and two sisters, Mrs. H. B. Walker and Mrs. Nellie G. Barber, both of Los Angeles.

RESUME FORD BODY WORK

DETROIT, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Delivery of automobile bodies to the Ford Motor Company's Dearborn plant was to be resumed today by the Briggs Manufacturing Company, but Ford officials said they had set no date for reopening their plants.

Ford plants all over the country were shut down a week ago because, officials said, a strike in the Briggs plants cut off the supply of bodies for the as yet unannounced new Ford models.

Representatives of the 6,000 striking Briggs employes announced after a meeting last night that the strike and picketing of the Briggs plants would be continued.

Production was resumed on a limited scale by the Briggs Company Tuesday and yesterday. William F. Connolly, treasurer, said:

"We are hiring more men, increasing production and minding our own business."

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Applause greeted the motion of Mary O. Kryszak, Milwaukee, only woman member of the State Assembly, when she moved that the "no smoking" rule be suspended during a tedious legislative session.

Assemblyman George E. Mahoney, Kenosha, shouted:

"I object. I can't stand smoke, and will be forced to walk out."

But the woman won, Speaker Cornelius Young announcing that Mahoney's objection came too late.

MRS. ROOSEVELT ENJOYS CHEAP PINCHOT MEAL

'Very Excellent,' Says Next First Lady, On Nickel Menu

HARRISBURG, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—America's next first lady leaves Harrisburg today with some first-hand information as to how the "other half"—particularly that portion of it being fed by charity—exists on meals at a nickel apiece.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt dined last night with 40 other guests of Gov. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot on black bean soup, hamburger and other plain fare which, without the ice cream, cost the Pinchots $2.72 for the entire group.

This "economy meal" of five courses was prepared from food purchased by Mrs. Pinchot at the community market in York, the same quality of food issued weekly to needy families.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she found it "very excellent."

Both Mrs. Roosevelt and Gov. Pinchot spoke today at a state conference on malnutrition.

Pennsylvania's commissary system of supplying food to the jobless was characterized by the Governor as a weapon for combating undernourishment among children and a "square deal" to the unemployed "as well as to the taxpayers who furnish the money."

Mrs. Roosevelt, making a plea for wise distribution of relief funds, declared:

"In the saving of our children lies the future of our country. Relief money must go as far as possible. We have no right to waste it."

Pinchot Pledges Aid To Roosevelt Program

HARRISBURG, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—Pennsylvania's independent political leader, Gov. Gifford Pinchot, spoke for the Republican party today and virtually pledged its co-operation with the Democrats nationally in control. The Governor at a meeting of legionnaires, the American Legion auxiliary and the Kiwanis Club, said:

"I am ready to cooperate to the limit of my powers with the new administration and every well-intntioned man and woman of my party will go to the full distance with me in that pledge."

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President-elect, was present as Gov. Pinchot spoke.

ALVAH KILLING TRIAL OPENS

LONG BEACH, Cal., Feb. 2.—(INS.)—Out of the fog of mystery and adventure the murder ship Carma sailed in shadowy outline today, and found anchor in a Long Beach courtroom.

For it was the opening day of the trial of that smiling soldier of fortune, William James (Curley) Guy, charged with slaying Capt. Walter Wanderwell, world traveler, on shipboard shortly before he was to leave for a cruise of the South Seas.

Who was the man whose face was framed in the porthole a few minutes before the shot rang out across the dark, quiet water and Wanderwell's dying cries were heard?

The state claims the name of this man is the name of Wanderwell's murderer—and that it was "Curley" Guy, once a member of a Wanderwell expedition in South Africa.

Chief among the witnesses called by the prosecution will be Aloha Wanderwell, blonde, exotic wife of Capt. Wanderwell, the mother of his two children and his companion during travel that took them to the four corners of the earth.

Mother Bequeaths Estate to Nathan

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—George Jean Nathan, drama critic, was bequeathed the personal estate of his mother, Mrs. Ella Nirdlinger Nathan, valued at $17,579, according to the inventory filed today.

Mrs. Nathan died December 23.

Husband's Bridge 'Mania' Brings Divorce Suit

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—He thought he was the world's best bridge player, Culbertson and Lenz notwithstanding.

So, when his wife led hearts when he had bid spades, he kicked over the bridge table in a frenzy Christmas Day.

Psychiatrists described his case as "dementia bridgeitis with a definite psychosis and marked grandeur neurosis."

All this was contained in the complaint of a suit for divorce filed today by Usona Allen, pretty actress, whose hobby is bridge, against C. Nelson Allen, whose love of the game had become, according to the charge, a "mania," causing him to treat Mrs. Allen in a "cruel and inhuman manner."

BANDMAN DEATH ALIBI BROKEN

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—(Universal)—The mysterious slaying last December 10 of Capt. Edwin O. Schildhauer, Austin High School bandmaster, had been revived today with the announcement of Police Capt. John Stege that the alibi of Carl Bradberry, a key witness, had been shattered.

Bradberry, a former deputy sheriff, has maintained that he met William Collins, a Negro gambler, about 7 p. m., the night of the murder, at a cafe and remained with him several hours. Schildhauer, according to his widow, Frances, was kidnaped from in front of his home shortly after 8 p. m.

Cass Harris, another Negro, and one of Bradberry's alibi witnesses, broke down yesterday and said he was at the cafe and that Bradberry did not appear there that night until "after 9 o'clock."

Bradberry already has admitted an affair with the attractive Mrs. Schildhauer.

Girl, 15, Scolded Leaps Out Window

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—After being admonished for keeping late hours, Mary Thomas, 15-year-old school girl, leaped from a window of her aunt's fourth-floor apartment in Third avenue today.

She was taken to City Hospital suffering from a broken leg and possible fracture of the skull and internal injuries from which it was feared she might not recover.

4 Pit Mules Saved As Stable Burns

Four mules were led to safety by employes of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation when fire broke out in the corporation's 30-stall stable at Mine No. 2, Library road, today.

Damage was estimated at $300 by Leo P. Schenot, chief of the Castle Shannon fire department.

English Duke Jailed For Hotel Bill

LONDON, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—The Duke of Manchester, ninth holder of a title dating back to more than two centuries, was ordered committed to prison for 42 days today for non-payment of a hotel bill.

The order was issued when the duke, who married Kathleen Dawes, an Anglo-American actress, in Greenwich, Conn., in 1931, failed to appear in Margate County Court on a judgment summons issued by the North Foreland Hotels, Ltd.

The duke also was fined £10 (about $34) for failing to appear on subpena.

Son and husband of American heiresses, the Duke of Manchester has gone through life a relatively poor man, not in spite of his titles, but because of them. He lamented at one time:

"Everybody expects a Duke to be rolling in money."

Twice a bankrupt, law suits have been heaped on his coroneted head throughout his lifetime.

The Duke's first wife was Helen Zimmerman, daughter of Eugene Zimmerman, oil and railroad millionaire, of Cincinnati. His mother was the former Consuelo Del Valle, of New York, Louisiana and Havana.

One of the Duke's sons, Lord Edward Eugene Fernando Montagu, was a member of the strange crew aboard the yacht on which Capt. Walter Wanderwell, adventurer and globe-trotter, was murdered off the California coast a few weeks ago.

Cantor Hides in Fear Of Boy Imitators

If anybody wants to know what the 12-year-old kiddies of this great big country are doing with their time, why they're giving imitations, according to Eddie Cantor.

The radio, stage and movie star reached town today with George Jessel and immediately bee-lined for his hotel room just to hear the telephone ring.

It rang. It rang again and again. Said Cantor:

"It's always that way. You know who's calling. Why, somebody who knows somebody who once saw me in a picture and this first somebody has a 12-year-old son who does swell imitations and will I please listen to him?

"Well, now, I am like the next fellow and I like to do favors, but the line is too long. I am thinking of asking my friend Mr. Roosevelt to pass a law forbidding 12-year-old kiddies from giving imitations. Or maybe the kiddies can just skip their twelfth year."

Cantor was looking forward not only to doing two shows today at Syria Mosque but to having dinner in Squirrel Hill with the family of Dave Rubinoff, the violinist, who, to hear Cantor tell it, is the greatest of the great.

'BUY AMERICAN' MOVE BY VETS IN OVERBROOK

Overbrook has joined the Buy American movement, through organization by Overbrook Post, No. 1620, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

A resolution indorsing the movement, passed at the post's last meeting, included the pledge of members to buy only articles made in the United States. Miles Loveland, adjutant, presented the plan.

LEADERS TO RALLY

Likewise, leaders of the Buy American movement throughout the United States have expressed their intention of meeting in Pittsburgh in the Chamber of Commerce February 15, to discuss the campaign.

A "Buy American" day will be observed in Pittsburgh February 16, with a number of speakers telling 1,500 members of the American Ceramic Society and friends the purposes of the movement—and its advantages.

L. D. Odner, managing director of the Buy American Association and secretary of the Newark Chamber of Commerce, Capt. Stockey of the American Patriotic League, and others will talk.

Invited to the conference will be a number of editors, manufacturers, Chamber of Commerce and other civic leaders. Odner arranged the conference. Explaining it he wrote:

"With the spread in the popularity in the Buy American movement new Buy American organizations are springing up in all parts of the country.

"It is essential for the success of the movement that duplication of activities of organizations operating in this field be avoided and that the respective organizations attain sufficient prestige to make it impossible for racketeers to take advantage of the work of the good organizations and mulct the Buy American sympathizers.

"With three Buy American organizations assembled for this convention, it forms an unusual opportunity to organize a national federation or council of Buy American organizations to coordinate our activities."

WIFE'S LETTER DIVORCE CAUSE

A letter from his wife, expressing her sympathy for his shattered dreams of matrimonial bliss, was included in a bill of particulars filed by William A. Vogel, of Delaware avenue, in his suit for divorce against Ruth Vogel.

The husband, who asks the divorce on grounds of desertion, says his wife left him January 29, 1931, to return to her parents in Wilkes-Barre. On February 21, 1931, she wrote him, saying:

"You know I don't love you. You could tell that by the way I acted toward you. I know that I can have everything I want, but it is impossible to live without love. I've found that out. I'm trying to keep my troubles to myself. I'm sorry to have shattered your dreams, but you know that it would only be hell for us to try and live together. They have all persuaded me to go back, but I would rather take poison first."

They were married September 2, 1930.

Your Income Tax

Couples Sometimes Save By Dividing Exemptions

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

This is the tenth of a series of articles analyzing the Revenue Act of 1932 and discussing the problems of income tax payers.

In a case where both a husband and a wife have incomes, it sometimes is desirable for them to divide their personal exemption between them in filing separate income tax returns.

The exemption does not have to be divided equally. Any convenient division may be used.

A husband who had a net income of $6,000 in 1932 and whose wife had a net income of $4,500 would find that their taxes would be reduced to the greatest possible extent by dividing the exemption so that the husband deducted $2,000 and the wife $500. In this way both their incomes could be kept within the $4,000 bracket so that taxes would be computed at 4 per cent.

Their returns would be made out as follows:

Net income, husband	$6,000
Personal exemption	2,000
Taxable at 4 per cent	$4,000
Husbands tax	$ 160
Net income, wife	$4,500
Personal exemption	500
Taxable at 4 per cent	$4,000
Wife's tax	$ 160

Any other division of the exemption would make the taxable income of either the husband or the wife in excess of $4,000 so that the 8 per cent tax bracket would be reached.

THOMAS ENDS DANDRUFF GROWS HAIR

Dandruff clogs the hair follicle, causes itchy scalp, falling hair, and keeps new hair from replacing hair which has dropped out. Because there are several types of dandruff, cure-all surface remedies usually do not correct the trouble. One of the most dangerous types of dandruff is caused by a germ deep in the scalp, known as "flask bacilli of Unna."

Thomas treatment attacks this destructive germ by modern therapeutic agents and restores the scalp to a normal healthy condition. When your scalp is once rid of baldness producing germs, hairfall stops, and new hair starts to grow again. Call at a Thomas office today for a free scalp examination and learn for yourself just how Thomas treatment can make your scalp healthy.

BARTER MART OPERATES IN M'KEESPORT

McKeesport's scripless barter exchange today was registering residents who wish to trade goods or services in lieu of money, with a 2 per cent charge made by the sponsor, M. E. Goldberg, a former radio store merchant.

Mr. Goldberg

While Goldberg said the exchange operates as a non-profit charitable organization, with no fee charged for registering, it is not a community-conducted service. Goldberg said two per cent cash would be charged each individual in a completed transaction, but if money was not available he would accept goods.

Stenographers and clerks have volunteered services in aiding the registration of those expected to avail themselves of the exchange at 228 Sixth avenue, McKeesport. The State Mercantile Appraiser's office yesterday said the exchange will be taxed as a brokerage.

As an example of his method Goldberg said a resident might wish to give a radio in exchange for the painting of his house, and the painter would need clothing for his family. Then the exchange would seek a merchant willing to give clothing for the radio. With the transaction completed the householder, the painter and the clothier each would pay 2 per cent, the exchange thereby receiving a total of 6 per cent.

Goldberg is a commissioned officer in the United States Naval Reserve, in charge of radio communication in the Ninth district, which includes the McKeesport section.

FALLS TO DEATH IN AVALON

An all-night search for William Davis, 50, of 302 Fisk avenue, Avalon, ended today with discovery of his body in a ravine 100 feet below Spruce Run Bridge, Avalon.

The man apparently had plunged from the span, striking a girder in his fall. The body was discovered by a brother-in-law, George Sexton. Davis left home at about 10 o'clock last night to escort a sister to a street car. The search began when he did not return home.

Davis formerly was connected with the pre-prohibition firm of Davis and Sexton, wholesale liquor dealers, and was retired. Police did not learn the cause of his plunge.

DISPUTE HALTS FIRE SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 2.—East Washington separated from this city by a mythical line, was without complete fire protection today as a result of a quarrel between officials of the two municipalities over the purchase of a fire truck—part of East Washington's payment for protection.

The solons of Washington contended the truck did not meet their specified requirements. The ensuing dispute reached the Washington County courts three months ago, and Mayor Robert E. Griffith told the suburb that in 90 days it must look elsewhere for protection.

The period ended yesterday and with it came Mayor Griffith's order to the fire department to answer no more alarms in East Washington. Then he sent the community a fire truck, described as being decrepit, saying:

"Dump it on their front step and let 'em keep it."

Woman Falls Dead In Electric Plant

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

We Shouldn't Keep Brooding About Old Mistakes

Do you "pick up" rides in strange autos?

Do you "get a kick out of taking a chance?"

And are you quite sure that you know when it's safe, and when it isn't, to trust a stranger's pleasing smile and polite words?

Thelma was—and warnings were all in vain.

"I can take care of myself!" she cried, when worried friends read her the latest front page horror.

Then came a day. But read it for yourself. And suppose the sobbing girl who wrote this letter were you. Would you feel that one terrible mistake had branded you for life?

Dear Elsie:

I am in a tough spot, and I hope you can help me. I am almost hopeless myself.

About a year ago I got into terrible trouble with a boy I hate. I simply hate him. I can't stand him. It guess it was partly my fault, because I picked up the ride thinking he was a nice fellow, and I'd get to a friend's house where I wanted to go. Instead, he took me to his room.

I don't have to tell you any more than that he was an unspeakable, contemptible cad. Well, anyway, I can thank heaven that I am not worse off than I am. But here is my big trouble.

I am in love with a fine young fellow, and I guess he loves me too much to leave me. I have told him about the terrible thing that happened, and told him to go away and find some one decent, but he said it wasn't that easy. I am sure he loves me. He is even planning to marry me some day.

MIND HAS CHANGED

Do you think I am wrong to still go with him? It would hurt me an awful lot to give him up, but I will if you say I should.

Shall I leave him and just keep on going out as I have done, with anyone who asked me for a date? I used to do that before I met him, because I thought "all men were the same." Now that I've met him, my mind is changed. I know there are a few—and maybe more—decent men left.

Please, what shall I do? Shall I go on and marry him some day, even if I am no good? Do you think we will ever find happiness? THELMA.

Don't "go on and marry" anyone if you feel that you are "no good." But why feel that way?

Yes, I know; you made a terrible mistake. You were cheap and silly and reckless, and you've paid the bitter price. But the price is all paid now—and no mistake is irreparable, if you really want to be through with it.

Not matter how bad you were in your past, you can be as good as any girl living, today, if you'll make a fresh start. But you can't make a fresh start if you keep dragging up bits of the old blunder and brooding over them.

FACE FACTS

For example, there's this which you're carrying with you constantly. That hate is spoiling your life, as much as the original mistake did. After all, why should you hate him, and distrust all other men so bitterly?

No matter what he did. You were as much to blame as he was. You betrayed yourself as much as he did. Maybe he was a cad but that doesn't excuse you far being a thrill-mad little fool.

So cut out the self-pity, Thelma, and face facts as they are. You've had a bad lesson. Take it on the chin! Then square your shoulders and start all over again. And as you start make a vow that you will never again mention this matter to the man you love.

That won't be any easy vow to make or keep. Whether you realize it or not, you're getting a certain satisfaction out of playing the role of the World's Greatest Sinner, and for a little while your lover will rejoice in comforting you. But presently, I warn you, he'll grow a bit sick of the act. So—

Cut it out, Chickie, and get going! Yesterday is over forever. Tomorrow is what you make it.

Collectors of Pretty Girls Not Good Marital Material—Fay King

SHE LIKES TO BE SEEN AND ADMIRED
YOU'RE JUST ANOTHER PRETTY GIRL IN HIS LIFE, THAT'S ALL!
I WOULDN'T WASTE MY TIME WITH SUCH A SHALLOW FELLOW!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

When a girl knows she is attractive she naturally likes to be seen.

Too often the man who can afford to take a pretty girl to the places where she likes to be seen is the sort who also likes to attract attention and envious glances for the lovely companion he brings.

And too often he is a collector of pretty girls. When he has astonished his friends with one pretty girl he likes to astonish them with another just as beautiful.

So that we see such a man taking little more interest in the girl he is with than to show her off.

If he marries one of the girls the marriage doesn't last much longer than his parade with a pretty girl.

Heart of a Wife -:- -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Asks Madge Not to Join Rescue Party

I pushed far back into my mind the query as to the meaning of Lillian's suddenly muted injunction when, as she opened the door, I saw Dicky coming along the corridor toward it. I did not need her announcement of his coming. I did not even notice whether she had gone to her own room. All my consciousness was focused on one thing—Dicky had come back.

"You've been crying!" he stormed. "I can see by your eyes. Why? Because I acted like the chief porker of the Gadarene swine? I'm not worth crying over, sweetheart. What did you waste any tears over me for?"

But I was beyond any speech save a murmured "Dicky! Dicky! Dicky!" as I clung convulsively to him, and he fell silent, stroking my hair and holding me close till I, too, was quiet.

"You're all in with this devilish mess," he said at last, "else you'd never go to pieces this way over a performance of mine. You certainly have seen enough of 'em, and you usually return each pineapple with another one more deadly. Where's the secret phobia? Better trot it out."

PUT AT EASE

"Oh! Can't you see?" I choked. "It wasn't what you said it was because you were going away so angry, and you had to fly this morning; and—you were so upset, and I was so afraid something would happen, and I would never—would never——"

I could not finish, but buried my face against Dicky's shoulder. For a long second he did not speak, then he laughed, softly, tenderly, while his arms tightened around me.

"Little idiot!" he murmured, with his lips close to my ear. "Did you have the slightest notion that I could go away on a flight without kissing you goodbye and knowing that everything was all right between us?"

"I was mad enough at you, when I went out, to take you up in a plane and send us and it to the devil; but that mood didn't last beyond the veranda steps, although I tried to make myself think it did. I never was so glad to see old Harry in my life as I was when he came ambling along and said he had to see me. I nearly fell on his neck, and I did a respectable sprint getting up to his room. He was quite outwinded. But he was such a swell excuse!"

His chuckle was so infectious that I felt all my color slipping away from me. Everything was all right with the world again. Even the flight was not the fearsome thing it seemed a few minutes before. After all, it was not a particularly dangerous flight he was attempting. He would come back to me safely, I was sure of it.

HUGH WAITING

"So I forgive you everything," Dicky said next, with a touch of his old diablerie. "Tell me you forgive me, and kiss me quickly, for I haven't much time, and Harry says old Hugh is waiting for me."

"Hugh?" My voice was so strained that I was panic-stricken for fear Dicky should notice it, and misunderstand the fear in it.

"Yes, Hugh. What's the matter? Afraid it's going to be coffee and pistols for two?"

There was no anger in his voice, yet: but there was a distinct change. I knew that I had sounded the wrong note, and struck my mental tuning fork again.

"One never knows," I forced myself to say with a little laugh, then I put my arms up around his neck.

"Oh, Dicky! What does anybody or anything in the world matter, except that we're not going to part in anger; that you've come back to say goodbye to me? Let's not speak or think of anything else."

"All right, sweetheart, not for a minute," he agreed, and held me closely, with tenderly murmured endearments, for double that time. Then he loosened me and looked down at me with suddenly insistent eyes.

"But I can't go away without your promise to keep away from that mess tonight," he said.

If you are having trouble making boiled frosting, try boiling the sugar and water until it forms a soft ball in water, instead of till it spins a thread. Most people cook the sugar and water too long.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

After shampooing hair that is inclined to be oily, pour over the head a quart of water to which has been added the strained juice of three lemons. Rinse away with clear tepid water.

Some day when the shopper is out on a big spree, loitering at the counter where toilet wares are on display, let her consider an indulgence in bath salts and bath powder. They impart a sweet fragrance that lasts all day long, are the least expensive of perfume luxuries. Bath salts are water softeners, inspire soap to get itself into a spirited lather. For the application of the powder, there can be purchased a big old-fashioned puff of swan's down.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Photograph

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been going about quite steadily with a young man durthe past year. I am not seeing him any more, but during the year I gave him my picture, not a "snapshot," which I autographed.

I was going to ask him to return it, but didn't because I had autographed it. May I ask him to return it, or would that be wrong? And should I write a note, or ask him for it when I see him and speak to him, as I do very often? READER.

Whether or not you should ask this young man to return your photograph depends on your own wish. It is quite all right to ask him to return it. The fact that it is autographed does not make any difference.

On your own choice, too, depends how you make the request. If it is easier for you, as I think might be true, to write a note requesting return of your photograph, this probably would be the best thing to do. This note should be a gracious one, of course, and the young man will understand your request.

Formal Dance Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I wish you would tell me if it would be perfectly proper to wear elbow length silk gloves with an evening gown to a formal dance? I cannot afford kid ones as yet. My gown is a deep pink, or I should say rose color. Should I wear white gloves? My pumps are white moire silk. J.

Instead of wearing silk gloves with your formal evening dress, it would be better not to wear any gloves.

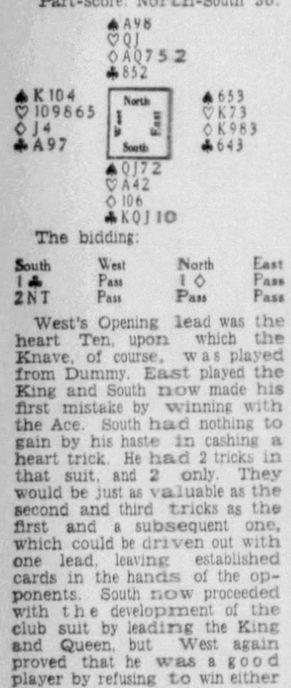
Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Capitalizing Mistakes

The play of a hand at Contract quite frequently resolves itself in the question of capitalizing the mistakes of the other side—whether the other side is the Declarer, who is attempting to make a contract, or his adversaries, who are attempting to defeat it. An example of beautiful defensive play, after the Declarer had made one mistake, came to me in the mails the other day from Mr. Jose P. Mendoza, of Buenos Aires, South America.

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Part-score: North-South 30.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
2 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

West's Opening lead was the heart Ten, upon which the Knave, of course, was played from Dummy. East played the King and South now made his first mistake by winning with the Ace. South had nothing to gain by his haste in cashing a heart trick. He had 2 tricks in that suit, and 2 only. They would be just as valuable as the second and third tricks as the first and a subsequent one, which could be driven out with one lead, leaving established cards in the hands of the opponents. South now proceeded with the development of the club suit by leading the King and Queen, but West again proved that he was a good player by refusing to win either of these tricks. Fathoming the plan of West, South now abandoned the development of the clubs, and shifted to the Queen of spades, but West again refused to cover, as his whole defense, which was begun with the refusal to win either the first or second lead of clubs, was based on the fact that he could foresee the defeat of the contract when the Declarer was forced to lead from Dummy.

A third lead of clubs forced West into the lead, and a heart was returned, but the making of the contract, due to West's superior defense, was now impossible. The diamond Ace was led, followed by a small diamond, which West won, but was still required to play with extreme care and brilliancy to defeat the contracts.

Instead of cashing his established hearts he led the 6, hoping to find his partner with the 7, and thus, as fortune favored him, in this respect he was able to defeat a contract which could have been made against anything but the most accurate defense.

TODAY'S QUESTION

South, Dealer, opened with a bid of one diamond, to which North responded with the bid of one spade, holding the following hand. Was this correct?

♠Q10832 ♡96 ◇A53 ♣532

Answer—Yes. The hand contains sufficient honor strength for a response of one notrump, but the shaded spade suit should be preferred.

Macaroni and Cheese

When preparing macaroni and cheese add a half teaspoon of mustard in the flour when making the white sauce. Then let the cheese melt in the white sauce and stir in a half teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce. This gives a pleasant little "bitey" flavor more like a rarebit and everyone enjoys the change.

Stretch $1 as far as $3 when fighting sore throat colds

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes 3 times as far. And whether you buy the 25c, 50c, or $1 size, you still get 3 times as much for your money.

THERE are other good antiseptics on the market that will help you escape colds...but they cost three times as much to use. That's the great advantage of using Pepsodent Antiseptic.

Only two kinds

When fighting sore throat colds and Bad Breath (Halitosis), remember there are really only two leading kinds of antiseptics on the market. In one group is the mouth antiseptic that must be used full strength to be effective. In the other group is Pepsodent Antiseptic—utterly safe when used full strength, yet powerful enough to be diluted with 2 parts of water and yet kill germs in less than 10 seconds.

Makes $1 equal $3

Pepsodent Antiseptic is at least three times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes three times as far—gives you three times as much for your money—and gives you extra protection against stubborn colds and throat irritations. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be sure! Be safe! Save your money and safeguard your health!

IMPURE BREATH

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, even when diluted with water it still kills germs.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Just a 'Stomach Ache' May Be More Than That

Not long ago an eminent surgeon published an interesting and instructive report on appendicitis. I will not burden you with the figures of his extensive study. But it showed that appendicitis continues to be a serious menace to every community.

Dr. Copeland

Appendicitis is a serious disease when neglected. Too often it is confused with an ordinary "stomach ache" and the sufferer takes a cathartic for relief. This is indeed a dangerous procedure because if the pain is due to an inflamed appendix the cathartic increases the inflammation.

If the inflammation continues, it may lead to rupture of the appendix. When this happens the pus contained within the appendix escapes into the abdominal cavity. This causes peritonitis, which is a serious complication of appendicitis.

Pain in the abdomen or stomachache should never be considered too lightly. You will always be on the safe side if you avoid cathartics. Apply a hot water bag to the abdomen. Heat usually relieves spasm and intestional tenderness due to food poisoning or digestive upsets.

If the pain is due to an inflamed appendix, relief will be obtained by an ice bag. Persistent pain demands immediate medical attention. Delay in calling the doctor prolongs convalescence and increases the danger.

Headache, nausea, fever, vomiting, constipation or diarrhea, are other signs of appendicitis. A positive diagnosis is often difficult to make. But if it is suspected, the sufferer should be examined immediately by a physician.

When the doctor is in doubt he can resort to certain tests which confirm the diagnosis. A blood count will give the needed information. If the patient has appendicitis, the number of white cells in the blood is increased. This condition of the blood is spoken of as "leucocytosis." This is always found when infection is present.

In what I have said I do not mean to imply, of course, that every stomach ache is due to appendicitis. But appendicitis is too frequently confused with stomach ache, and too many fatalities occur because of this confusion.

Remember these simple rules and whenever in doubt consult with your doctor. He has been trained in his work and will assume all the responsibility.

It is hoped that the general public will appreciate the efforts of the medical profession to enlighten the public. It is their endeavor to familiarize everyone with the signs of appendicitis. It is only by co-operation between the physician and the patient's family that the number of fatalities from appendicitis can be reduced to a minimum.

Answers to Health Queries

Mrs. F. H. Q.—What causes white patches on the hands?

A.—This is usually due to loss of pigment or coloring matter. The cause is not known and there is no specific cure.

M. C. Q.—Is olive oil as nourishing as cod liver oil?

A.—Yes, but cod liver oil is a more general tonic.

CLUE TO LATEST CIPHER GIVEN

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor.

What success are you having on Cipher No. 51? It is pretty hard, isn't it? Quite a few fans are asking for a tip today. So the Cipher Editor will give you one clue that may help.

Use a letter frequency table. That should be enough. Go to work and see what success you'll have. It may be easy now. If you are having trouble, write the Cipher Editor.

Frank Balowitz, who contributed this cipher, writes:

"To say that I solved all your ciphers would be untrue, but I solved all your easier ones. The main reason I don't solve some of the harder ones is lack of time.

"When I have three or four hours to spare, I tackle your hard ciphers and usually conquer them. My favorite ciphers are the letter frequency types. This cipher of mine should keep your fans guessing for some time."

The postman brings original ciphers from Lloyd Shirley, of Donora, Pa., and Daniel A. Rodgers, of 1521 Brighton road.

L. M. Aspinwall, of 6411 Kentucky avenue, sends in the solution to Cipher No. 49.

HUGE AID PLAN REVEALED BY ROOSEVELT

est area upon which merchantable timber can be grown.

8—Decentralization of industry in such fashion as to bring mills and factories to the smaller communities.

9—Application of the best thought in city planning to an entire area, and eventually to the nation.

The President-elect thinks—he does not know — that such a breath-taking enterprise could be made self-sustaining. If it proves to be, the formula can be extended to the Ohio Valley, the Arkansas Valley, the Columbia Basin, the Missouri River and elsewhere.

OUTLINES PROJECT

Mr. Roosevelt obviously has thought long and deeply on the subject. He outlined this most ambitious experiment to newspaper men here, talking easily, as with an intimate knowledge of every detail.

The project would touch Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, Kentucky, a corner of Mississippi and through flood control, affect all of the states on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to the south.

Mr. Roosevelt thinks from 50,000 to 75,000 men a year could be put to work at forestation, including state and privately-owned land.

Muscle Shoals, of course, will be an integral part of the great system, but the President-elect is looking far beyond this project. If all the waters were controlled, a total of between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 horsepower could be developed.

GOVERNMENT'S PART

In this connection, Mr. Roosevelt said he was contemplating government operation only "in the broader sense in co-operation with states and municipalities."

As soon as he goes to Washington, with the help of the War, Interior and Agriculture departments and various independent bodies, Mr. Roosevelt plans to begin work on a specific formula for presentation to Congress.

The Tennessee basin was selected for the experiment, he said, because after studying all watersheds he decided more data was available, the government has its greatest financial interest therein, and the basin contains every range of topography with a variety of climates, forests, agriculture and industry.

SILVER FORCES WIN RAINEY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Silver inflationists today added to their ranks a new ally, one who may be speaker of the next House.

As the House Coinage Committee resumed its hearings on various bills to re-monetize silver, Rainey, of Illinois, now the Democrat leader and a candidate for the speakership, said to newspapermen:

"If we've got to have some kind of inflation—and it seems inevitable that we will have in the new Congress—silver will be the best way to do it. If you start the usual paper inflation, you can't stop it. Expansion through the purchase of silver and the issuance of silver certificates can be controlled."

Rainey said that if he were elected speaker he would not only be "delighted" to help silver inflationists get a vote on their plan, but would "vote with them."

His position differs considerably from that of some other party leaders in Congress who fear any inflation might be disastrous. But all agree that sentiment for currency expansion is increasing and will be even stronger in the new Congress.

Mercer Pair Hurt As Horse Runs Off

SENATOR ASKS BULLITT ARREST

don, Paris, Berlin and Vienna and his conversations with premiers and other officials of the four countries. The Senator asked:

"Who is this man Bullitt? And what is he doing in Europe and whom does he represent?"

Robinson asserted that President-elect Roosevelt's denial of responsibility for Bullitt's mission extended only to the one question of war debts. The Senator said:

"It is high time for the American government to ascertain who he is and what he is doing here. He unquestionably is making the United States government a laughing stock. Does he represent the house of Morgan or the international bankers?

"Under these circumstances, he should be apprehended and brought to justice."

NO CREDENTIALS

The Indiana Senator declared Bullitt had no credentials from the Hoover administration and that President-elect Roosevelt had denied sending him. He added:

"Unless he is representing private interests to the detriment of the American people, Bullitt can be representing nobody.

"I think the State Department should immediately apprehend this man, who is going from one capital to another deliberately preaching in favor of what Congress has declared shall not be done. He is preaching the doctrine or reduction and cancellation of war debts. He goes around under an assumed name, in disguise, an undercover man. It is high time he is apprehended and brought to justice."

Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader, again denied Bullitt was representing Mr. Roosevelt. He also declared there wasn't the slightest truth to reports that Mr. Roosevelt favored an 80 per cent reduction in war debts.

Robinson's speech came as the climax to the storm of opposition brewing to the proposed Anglo-American debt negotiations, even while they are yet in the formative stage.

Leaders in Congress and officials of the outgoing administration expressed amazement and incredulity over the speeches of Neville Chamberlain, British Chancellor, in which he stated that Britain has nothing to offer the United States in exchange for revision of the $4,500,000,000 war debt.

In unanimity such as is rarely witnessed, they declared that if this is to be the attitude in which Britain approaches the negotiations then the effort to arrive at a settlement will die a-borning. Even those who hailed the original announcement of President-elect Roosevelt's willingness to negotiate felt that way.

SENATORS STIRRED

Typical of the feeling were the following statements:

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho:

"If Mr. Chamberlain means that his government is unwilling to consider any question at the conference other than the debts, then we should save both time and expense and call off the conference."

Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Montana (probably Attorney General in the Roosevelt administration):

"Apparently the British are coming over to persuade us that it would be to our own interest to cancel or reduce the debts. I think we are quite competent ourselves to reach a just conclusion in that matter."

Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania:

"If the British come to the conference in the frame of mind that they have nothing to offer, then I see no possibility of any conclusion being reached acceptable to both nations."

CALL BANKERS IN STOCK QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Officials of the National City Bank will be asked to explain to a committee of Senators the public marketing of their own bank stocks.

Chairman Norbeck, of the Senate Banking Committee, conducting a stock market investigation, said that Charles E. Mitchell and other high officers of the bank would be called to appear February 21.

Norbeck said the National City Bank stock was sold at a "phenomenally high price and dropped to less than one-twentieth of that high price."

The committee's investigation, Norbeck said, has shown that "some of the large banks were highly responsible for the wild stock market boom."

Norbeck said that at that time the Federal Reserve Board sought to slow the boom and asked the co-operation of Mitchell, then a director of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. Norbeck said:

"Mitchell defied the board and speeded up the boom. He took a 'go-to-hell' attitude toward the boom and got away with it."

Supt. Hal Griffis, of the airport here, sent up Pilot Ross Peacock to warn the Army flier. Dawson saw the cable and shook it loose by trailing it over a telephone pole before landing.

Charles of London Suite.... $129

In the February Sale—

Because the conventional Charles of London design is too massive for many modern, smaller homes, we have worked out this design, with a narrow, clean-cut molding of solid mahogany at the arms and base. We have achieved a lighter feeling without sacrificing any of the substantial beauty and easy comfort of the older type. The square, simple lines, the excellent construction give you not only a lifetime suite, but lifetime satisfaction! Now!—at our February sale price.

FRIML OPERA

Weber-Fields, Fred Astaire With Rudy

A top-notch variety bill headed by Fred Astaire, dancing star of the current Broadway success, "Gay Divorce," and the veteran comedy team, Weber and Fields, is offered by Rudy Vallee on WCAE tonight at 8 o'clock. In addition, Janet Beecher and Claude Rains present a scene from the talking picture version of "Bill of Divorcement" and William Demarest, comedian of Earl Carroll's recent "Vanities," and his vaudeville partner, Colette, contribute comedy sketches.

Mr. Astaire

The romantic story of Francois Villon's day as King of France, unfolded to the accompaniment of Rudolph Friml's music, is listed on WJAS at 10 p. m. when the Aborn Opera Company presents a miniature version of "The Vagabond King." Edward Neil, Jr., is cast in the role of Villon; Gladys Baxter, Katherine, and Eleanor Le Mance, Huguette.

In order to make sure that the groundhog will return disgruntled to his cave, Col. Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle and his shadow, Budd, outline their daring new economic scheme known as "Stoopnocracy" on WJAS at 9:30. Under the new plan, which consists of five essential points (briefly, first point, second point, third point, fourth point and fifth point), work would be measured in terms of groundhogs and money would be supplanted by woodchucks.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Had a talk with George Meyers, chief of the Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes and am answering all those inquiries concerning the personal property tax in one paragraph.

Husband and wife can make a joint return. That means that each will not be taxed separately, but both will be taxed as one. February 15 is the last day for filing.

Many of you say that you have not received your return blank yet. They are in the hands of the assessors and still are being distributed.

I asked Mr. Meyers how the county will check up on the citizens. He says that they have made an extensive survey by their assessors and they have 720,788 names on the poll tax assessment books. The penalty for failure to make return is an additional tax to an arbitrary assessment. On failure to pay, a judgment can be entered and this operates as any ordinary judgment, a lien against realty. An execution can issue against those without real estate if the county can discover any assets.

A month ago a bundle fell from a moving truck between Mt. Lebanon and Greentree. The bundle contained linens and spreads, but most precious of all, a picture album containing the only picture of a little girl—who is now dead. If anyone knows the whereabouts of this bundle and communicates with the Globe-Trotter, the distressed mother will be notified immediately.

* * *

There may be something to Mrs. Ned Meyer's bit of information. She tells that if trees in the summer have light foliage, the winter will be mild, and a heavy foliage indicates a bitter winter.

Last summer the aforesaid foliage was very light.

A suggestion for a dog's name—Keeper.

Globe Trotter personals—Mrs. Mathilda Krise, of Altoona, Pa., recently celebrated her ninety-second birthday. Her activities, beside listening to the radio, are long automobile rides and quilting . . . Joseph Argenson, of Donora, who has just marked up his eighty-first birthday, entertained his friends with two solos at a gathering in his honor.

I think "stupid" is one of the ugliest words.

Mrs. D. J. F.—Many sound effects on the radio are produced by means of phonograph records recorded from real life. Rattle of musketry for a battle scene was produced by dropping small fire crackers into a large box covered with a screen. For waves lapping on the shore loose rice was rolled around the head of a drum. Now mob scenes, storm episodes, trains and a baby's cry and even applause are easily and effectively reproduced by the drop of a needle.

American Weekly Dramas on Air

Five stations in the Pittsburgh area present "The Mystery of the Kremlin," drama based on an article appearing in the next issue of the American Weekly, today. It is listed on WFBG, Altoona, at 3 p. m.; KQV, 3:30 p. m.; WWSW, 4 p. m.; WJAC, Johnstown, 5 p. m., and on WWVA, Wheeling, W. Va., at 5:30 p. m.

"The Ghost Weeps," the second of this week's American Weekly dramas, in which a spectral husband returns frequently to visit his wife and persists in sending messages to her by means of a "ghost" typewriter, is offered on WKBN, Youngstown, O., at 9 tonight. Charlotte Walker portrays the leading role.

Magic Carpet Saturday Trips End

The final Saturday night program of the "Magic Carpet" series is to be given this Saturday. The sponsors have decided to cancel the week-end bill—despite NBC's efforts to hold it by offering a series of new musical shows — because of the let-down to the Saturday broadcasts due to the tremendous popularity of Jack Pearl on Thursdays... Alexander Kann, young Pittsburgh actor, is being featured in three major network dramatic productions—Dream Dramas, March of Time and The Inside Story. He's the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Kann, of 5478 Black street, East End, and the brother of Bessie Kann Sack, Pittsburgh attorney-at-law.

Mr. Kann

Preliminary auditions for a new musical extravaganza, designed particularly for the microphone, but so constructed that it also can be staged for a visible audience, have just been held. The first show, "Robinson Crusoe," will have a chorus of 16 and a narrator, and will be presented in eight 30-minute episodes. Billy Smith, of Broadway, is the producer; Paul Specht, the musical director, and Hal Dyson, the lyric writer.

If CBS plans are carried out, a broadcast of the Passion Play at Oberammergau will come to this country. A talk by Apton Lang, portrayer of "Christus;" a children's chorus, and the Passion Play chorus will be included.

Smith Ballew, who's been clicking in New York dance meccas and on NBC and CBS networks for the last four years, brings his orchestra to the William Penn Hotel Monday, replacing Henry Halstead.

MUSIC

Henry Harris
Y. M. & W. H. A.

PROGRAM

Sonata, A minor ..... Mozart
(Allegro—Andante—Presto)
Ballade, A flat ..... Chopin
Symphonic Etudes, Opus 13 ..... Schumann
Sonata, E minor (in one movement)
..... Debrowen
Etude, F sharp ..... Stravinsky
La Terrasse des audiences du clair de lune ..... Debussy
Minstrels ..... Debussy
Triana ..... Albeniz
Rhapsody, No. 6 ..... Liszt

A large audience obviously enjoyed Henry Harris' piano recital last night in the "Y" auditorium. It is right interesting nowadays to watch how our public is being weaned away from its old favorites among the romantic composers and how spontaneously it begins to respond to moderns as recent as Stravinsky. Perhaps it was the thrilling playing of this music, perhaps the charm of the music itself which called forth the applause, but the audience did accept it wholeheartedly.

Mr. Lissfelt

The first half of the program belonged to another day; the last half to our generation. Harris is living in his own day, knows its idiom, and with glowing colors plays its music. His agile fingers no longer recognize difficulties in this music and his alert mind finds its taunting moods. There are depths of Chopin and Schumann which he is still seeking, but those who remember his last playing must recognize how far this young man has gone in finding himself.

As encore came a Chopin mazurka, the Berceuse, and the C Minor Etude.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

HEARING LIKELY ON TOWN HALL SITE DEAL

If the Schenley Farms Company makes formal demand on Controller Robert G. Woodside for $1,400,000 in payment for the town hall site, he will conduct a public hearing to determine whether the demand has merit, Woodside indicated today.

He notified the County Commissioners he expected to be called upon by the company, and has indicated the Commissioners will be invited to the hearing to support their stand that the contract is void.

Woodside, in a letter to the Commissioners, asked that they set aside $2,000 to employ a stenographer to record the hearing. With Commissioner W. D. Mansfield back today from Harrisburg, the Commissioners were expected to take up the Woodside request.

COUNTY WINS IN COURT

An order handed down in Common Pleas Court yesterday, overruling the demurrer of the Schenley Farms Company on the grounds that the Controller has general supervision and control of the fiscal affairs of the county and his duty to audit and decide on bills, claims and demands. The opinion said persons having claims should first present them to the Controller.

The court action leaves the company with the right to make formal demand for the money. Woodside said that at the hearing he would give the company an opportunity to present reasons for payment of the bill.

TEST OF BOARD'S STAND

The Controller informed the Commissioners he would also give them an opportunity to present justification of their resolution of several months ago, in which they decided to treat the contract as void.

The developments indicated the question of completing the hall site purchase soon would be before the courts again, this time with a formal demand for payment.

Byrd, Sims Rapped By Legion Leader

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—The National Economy League and its chief proponent, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, today stood indicted by Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, as "stalking horses" for the wealthier classes.

At a dinner last night tendered to him and Paul H. Griffith, of Uniontown, commander of the Pennsylvania department of the Legion, Johnson severely criticized Rear Admiral Byrd, Archibald Roosevelt and Rear Admiral William S. Sims for their activity in the economy league.

Beer King's Truck Seized by Troopers

LANGHORNE, Pa., Feb. 2.—(INS.)—A truck containing 20 kegs of beer, which police said was shipped by Dutch Schultz, New York beer king now at grips with Uncle Sam over purported income tax evasions, was seized by state troopers on the Lincoln Highway near here today.

Corp. John Wollmer, of the Morrisville state police sub-station, said the shipment was for a Philadelphia beer baron, who has been forced to close several "oases" in Bucks County because of a close watch recently established by authorities.

Philippine Leader To Visit Capitol

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine Senate, and outstanding political figure of the islands, announced today he would sail February 25 for Washington to confer with the Independence Mission and Congressmen over the Independence Act.

Quezon changed his mind again about making the trip after Senator Hawes (Dem.), of Missouri, independence sponsor, said the Filipino leader would not oppose the act if he had been in Washington during its passage.

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatica pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengue (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain. Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for any drug that is powerful enough to "deaden" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

But beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengue by name (called "Ben-Gay" in English). There are many analgesic balms, mostly cheap imitations of Ben-Gay made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are cheap. That is also why they are ineffective. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

3 PAPAL BULLS MADE PUBLIC

ROME, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—A summary of the three papal bulls outling the indulgences to be gained during the holy year proclaimed by Pope Pius XI to begin April 2 was published by the semi-official Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano today.

The first suspends the granting of indulgences outside Rome except for special indulgences such as those granted to dying persons.

The second bull grants special powers to confessors in Rome to give absolution in "reserved cases," as well as to commute visits to the four Roman basilicas.

The third provides that all Catholics unable to come to Rome because of imprisonment, exile, sickness or extreme old age can gain indulgences by asking their confessors for special programs of prayers and visits.

REDUCE WITHOUT THYROID WITHOUT SALTS WITHOUT DIET

Science finds only absolutely safe way to lose ugly fat.

Here's wonderful news for women who want to make their figures slim and lovely. A great physician, who has specialized in research with the Pasteur Institute of Paris and famous clinics of America, has discovered an absolutely harmless tablet that will take off 3 pounds of ugly fat each week.

Now it is absurd for anyone to take dangerous drugs, or a daily dose of laxative salts that rushes food through the system half digested, and leads to chronic constipation. The new treatment contains no Thyroid Extract, no laxative drugs at all. It is a safe, natural regulator of the digestive ferments (Lipases) which control the production of fat in all human bodies.

You don't have to starve yourself or go through painful exercises. You simply take the tablets each day and continue to eat three ample meals. The fat disappears at just the places where you want to lose it. We will donate $500 to charity if anyone can prove that Vannay contains Thyroid, Iodine or any harmful drugs.

Start the treatment at once and all your fondest dreams of health and slim loveliness will come true. Ask your druggist for Vannay and be sure to see that name on the package. If you are not entirely satisfied, money back.

Accused of the bold holdup of two North Side business places during business hours yesterday, George Cvetovic, 23, who said his home is in New York City, was held for court by Magistrate Ray Schneider today on charges of pointing firearms, carrying concealed weapons and robbery.

ILLUSION:

Like a fly this remarkable woman walks—head down—in defiance of gravity—backward and forward across a board hung from the ceiling!

EXPLANATION:

This old illusion is dependent for success on a simple scientific principle. Attached to each of the performer's shoes is a rubber "sucker" or disc which creates a vacuum and adheres to the board—supporting the "human fly's" weight.

IT'S FUN TO BE FOOLED

...IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW

Copyright, 1933, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company

We all like magicians' tricks. But tricks in cigarette advertising are quite another matter.

Here's one you may have wondered about. The illusion that only one cigarette is "pure."

EXPLANATION: All popular cigarettes are made under the most sanitary conditions. All use a good cigarette paper. All are made with practically identical modern machinery. All are pure.

But the quality of the tobacco is another story.

The pleasure you find in a cigarette is determined by the quality of the tobaccos used. Mildness and fine flavor come from the costlier tobaccos.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

It's the tobacco that counts—plus a matchless blending of leaf with leaf to bring out the delicate flavor of choice tobaccos.

That's why Camels have given more people more pleasure than any other cigarette.

Camels are always fresh, always cool, always in prime condition . . . in the air-tight, welded Humidor Pack.

Sudden Wealth Makes Great Change in Lives of Engaged Couple

Synopsis

Young Charlie Janes, $25-a-week stockroom clerk, becomes engaged to Sue Hemingway just as her family unexpectedly inherits the fortune of "Lucky Lou" Stinson. Mr. Hemingway declares he will not take the money, but Sue and her mother overrule him. The women buy a new car, arrange to go on a cruise and take their place in the world of wealth and leisure.

Now Go On

CHAPTER IV.

The newspaper estimate of the Stinson fortune was seven millions. And it was probably fairly accurate. All day long and day after day, while he checked gross lots of right and left soles and packed the cases and barrels and compared the shipping tags with the stock numbers, Charlie figured it in terms of income, and tried to work out in his imagination the thousands of things it could mean.

The income alone would be $350,000. Perhaps more. To Mrs. Hemingway, it opened a vast new world. All her life she had struggled; now, in a single stroke, she found herself a personage. And finding herself so, she was stepping blithely out. Her head was full of it (as was Sue's). And she meant to use her new position in life to the full. She had always been a pleasant enough woman, but now you sensed iron in her. Evidently she had qualities that had never before been brought into play. Now, with those deeper qualities released, she simply couldn't be headed.

Feverishly she and Sue worked at their preparations—shopping and dressmaking and breaking in two new servants to manage the house during their absence, and riding about in the new car. It was a breath-taking, exultant expansion of interests.

KEEPS JOB

Mr. Hemingway was helpless. He didn't talk any more about it. But he'd flatly refused to go on the North Cape cruise. And he clung doggedly to his job; went in every morning and came out for dinner every evening, and then worked almost as usual about the place. But not quite as usual; his eyes looked troubled.

Money—millions of it—was a terrific force. Mr. Hemingway was right—it changed people. Little by little, Charlie had to bring himself to face the fact. He couldn't stand before it. He could only bow his head as to a storm and hope for the return of some degree of mental balance a little later, when the effects of this first shock should have passed. There would be no quarrel between him and Sue. He must control his feelings, or he'd simply drive her off for good. Every day he sent flowers. Every evening he drove around to help in what small ways he could, mostly running errands.

There were very few chances to be alone with her. His eyes, like those of a devoted dog, hung on her most casual movement. He was deeply, confusedly unhappy, but he kept that to himself. And he was in love, rather terribly in love. Love was proving to be a force, too. It shook him, as the fortune had shaken the Hemingways.

ALONE AT LAST

The only opportunity for a brief drive with Sue arose on the last evening before they sailed. Sue planned it, dropping him a quickly whispered warning to wait in his car after he'd said good-night. He did this, driving a little way along the street and then waiting. After a time, he heard their front door softly open and close; and then Sue came. She looked very lovely in her new clothes. A bit New Yorky, he thought, with misgivings. As she climbed in and they drove away, he felt abashed and remote and small. He must watch his tongue.

Sue helped by slipping her arm about his shoulders, and then she disarmed him by whispering in his ear, like the excited girl she was, that she was crazy about him. It was bewildering. All the week she had been intensely preoccupied. Over and over the thought had arisen—"she doesn't know I'm alive." But now she seemed, abruptly, all his. He did nothing about it just then, but drove soberly on toward the river. She chuckled happily and drew his nearer hand from the wheel and twisted her fingers in among his. And she lifted his hand and kissed it over and over.

Perhaps, in spite of all the excitement, she was sorry to leave him. When they were parked down by the river and he had her close in his arms he found himself so shaken as to be actually on the point of tears. Evidently he didn't know much about womenfolks. For a week she had just about ignored him. Now, all at once, she seemed unable to think of anything but him and their love.

SUE BEWILDERED

Maybe women, some women, couldn't carry more than one thing in their heads at a time. Perhaps she'd just suddenly remembered him. Found she was going to miss him. And so, for the moment, forgot all the other wonderful things. She even cried, and made him promise to write every day and said that she was going to miss him terribly and that when she came back she'd never go away from him, again. He could see that she was in a bewildered mood; quite as confused as he.

She spoke out about it, after a time. "Charlie, I've been going around pinching myself all the week. I keep thinking we mustn't spend this and we can't afford to do that, and then all at once I wake up to the fact that we can afford anything. Anything! Oh, all sorts of cars, and a country place with dozens of servants, and a big yacht . . . simply anything. It takes your breath away. Makes you dizzy. It's all I can do to believe it. It's been simply a whirl of a time. With all the newspapermen and the upset at home and everything. Dad's been acting rather queerly. We've had rows. Oh, not exactly rows, either. Dad's always quiet. But he's got his back up. Trying to stop mother. He can't, of course."

Charlie considered the picture she'd drawn. He mustn't say too much. When his mind was set on it (and it was), he could guard his tongue. "I suppose," he remarked, slowly and soberly, "that he can't help thinking it over from every angle. The money hasn't come yet."

"Oh, it will!"

"But it hasn't. Not yet. An experienced man can't help taking that into account."

CHARLIE PESSIMISTIC

"But we know Lou Stinson never married. Dad's his only living relative. Even if that note he left wasn't quite a regular will, it's good. The lawyers think so, considering everything. No, I'm afraid Dad's just a little narrow about it. Mother wanted him to sell some bonds to help on expenses now. But he wouldn't. That made mother pretty mad. She had to sell her own bonds. They've hardly spoken since. It isn't pleasant. I confess I'll be tickled to death to get out of that home atmosphere for a while. I mean, I would be if it wasn't for leaving you, dear."

Charlie looked moodily off into the shadow of the woods. He was trying not to talk at all, trying desperately; just fighting words back. At last a few of those words got away from him. "I wonder what's going to happen to us, Sue."

"Oh, Charlie! Don't talk like that!"

"But . . . you'll be gone so long! There'll be men after you. A lot of smooth rotters. They'll know. Millions of dollars. Oh, they'll know!"

"Oh, Charlie, I love you! I don't want anybody else. I do want to have a little fling while I can. Just one fling. Then I'll come back and we'll be married and settle down."

"I don't believe you've told your mother."

"Told my . . ." Sue caught her breath.

"She hasn't said a word to me."

"But it's been such a confusing time. I'm afraid you don't quite realize, dear. There'll be chances enough, after we've gone."

"She'll have other plans for you."

"Oh, no. She isn't thinking about that."

"How do you know? She has changed, Sue. Already."

UNHAPPY FAREWELL

Sue pursed her lips. It was true enough. She had changed considerably more than Charlie knew. There were problems.

Suddenly he turned on her. "You'll change, too. You won't be able to help it." He was about to add, hotly: "It isn't fair to me to go away like this without telling her." But Sue, who was still in that warmly impulsive mood, and who disliked arguments anyway, flung her arms about his neck and stopped his mouth with hers.

There wasn't anything much he could say to that. Shortly afterward, they drove back. He contrived a smile at the moment of their farewell. And Sue cried again. She had never appeared so real. She was heartbreakingly lovely as she clung to him. Then, once again he drove alone about the countryside, very late. The ship sailed from New York on the following evening. He telegraphed roses.

He was to dwell much, and poignantly, on this last stolen hour with Sue.

Confused, queer days and nights followed. Vivid mental pictures—Sue in his arms, protesting her love; Sue, exquisitely attractive in her bright new clothes, lounging on a palatial ship, with insinuating men about. The smell of leather. A haunting urge for the sea, a yearning that was an ache to head out into deep water and simply disappear (that would be his seafaring heritage). Sudden uprushes of emotion that gripped and shook and frightened him. Love was a madness, it appeared. All that money—more than his tortured imagination could grasp—infinite in its power, crushing in its vital force.

Pinchot Dinner Held Commissary Boost

—By MARK SHIELDS—

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 2.—The dinner which Gov. and Mrs. Pinchot gave last night at the executive mansion in honor of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was a comparatively small affair, but outsiders who peek in at the diners through the medium of the guest list see much adroitness on the part of whoever arranged the affair.

Mr. Shields

Mrs. Roosevelt was in Harrisburg to speak on malnutrition of children. Underlying this subject is a hope by exponents of the commissary form of feeding the needy that her presence and personality will bring acceptance of the system by individuals and groups who persist as advocates of the food order method.

* * *

Democratic Leaders Among Guests

Joseph F. Guffey and David L. Lawrence, of Pittsburgh, were guests. They are Democratic leaders, and two weeks ago the Democratic membership of House and Senate offered a resolution condemning the commissary. Perhaps Mr. Guffey and Mr. Lawrence, under the glow of a pleasant dinner and the conversation of such men as Dr. E. V. McCollum, of John Hopkins, and Dr. Ross Patterson, of Jefferson Hospital, may suffer a change of heart.

And this they may communicate to their Democratic followers.

John A. Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, is another who opposes the commissary, and Mr. Phillips was a guest.

Present also was Maj. John H. Leavell, of Oklahoma, originator of the commissary idea. It is reasonable to believe that Maj. Leavell did not confine his conversation to the condition of the oil fields of his Tulso home, but here and there dropped a word about the manner in which commissaries had and could work.

* * *

Gitt as Relief Chief Might Not Surprise

Another guest was Jesse Gitt, of York, a newspaper publisher. But Mr. Gitt is an adherent of the commissary system, having taken charge of its operation in York, where reports are that the method is a success, and at a cost far cheaper than other counties have encountered with the food order plan.

There is another angle to the presence of Mr. Gitt which is worth attention, particularly when it is noted that William B. Rodgers, of Pittsburgh, director of the state Emergency Relief Board, and Eric Biddle, of Philadelphia, his assistant, were not among the diners.

It would not be surprising, should a change occur in the top personnel of the relief board, for Mr. Gitt to receive the appointment as chief, though Mr. Rodgers at this time has no thought of resigning. Mr. Gitt is perhaps more enthusiastic about the commissary than is Mr. Rodgers, or at least was an original devotee and not a convert.

Mrs. Pinchot, one of the first to champion the commissary, and who was somewhat instrumental in bringing Maj. Leavell to Pennsylvania, has visited the York commissary, and is known to have approved its plan of operation.

* * *

Scientists' Presence Held Significant

Naturally the dinner was largely democratic affair, because of Mrs. Roosevelt, but the presence of the scientists, the originator of the commissary and its leading organizer in Pennsylvania has significance.

Justice James B. Drew of the Supreme Court was there with Mrs. Drew, and so were Lieut. Gov. and Mrs. Shannon, both gentlemen being Republicans. Gen. Shannon, however, is hot for the commissary, and former Senator Joseph R. Grundy, among the guests, also is said to favor the plan.

Unquestionably the relief board is working for the spread of the commissary, and is encountering opposition from many counties. There is to be no "force" action, the counties being counted on ultimately to accept the plan on a basis both of economy and better nutrition.

But the problem of influencing them to accept it will be materially facilitated if the opposition headed by the Democrats can be dissipated pleasantly. Much of the success of the commissary system depends upon the cheerfulness with which it is embraced by those in need, and that cheerfulness is more likely where political leaders are not vociferating their objection in legislative halls.

Last night's dinner was an illustration of the commissary benefits as the menu was a replica of that furnished by the York commissary.

Parenthetically, I am informed that not all of the guests went hungry to the dinner after making this discovery, fortifying themselves in advance.

SLASHED MAN TELLS OF 'RIDE' ATTACK

Tells Police He'll Get Bootleggers Who Kidnaped Him

Bleeding from six stab wounds to his wrists, arms and head, William G. Ramsey, 27, of 1232 California avenue, Avalon, early today was found by Chief of Police Louis Lukan and Patrolman Arthur Hallowel, of Avalon, at California avenue and Division street.

Ramsey told police he had been "put on the spot by two men at Pennsylvania avenue and Brighton road, four miles from where he was found. Refusing to name his assailants, he described them as "bootleggers" and boasted that he would "deal with them himself," police said.

Thomas Grubbs, operator of an Avalon street car, told police Ramsey had ridden in his car. Police believe he got aboard to escape his attackers. He is being held in Avalon police station on a disorderly conduct charge.

STUDY COUNTY PENSION PLAN

Plans for a reorganization of the county employes' pension fund were being discussed today by the County Commissioners and Controller Robert G. Woodside, with George B. Buck, New York, actuary. Boosting of the retirement age, along with numerous other changes, it was said, were recommended by Buck following a survey.

The Commissioners recently discovered it would require an appropriation of $75,000 by the county next year to keep the fund operating and that there is not sufficient capital to maintain the present rate of pensions.

MAN TELLS GIRL HE'S BEEN SHOT

When Edna Mae Wenzel, 15, answered the knock on the front door of the Wenzel home at 512 Cedar avenue, North Side, today, a shabbily dressed man asked her:

"Can you tell me where the nearest doctor is. I want to have a bullet taken out of my shoulder."

Miss Wenzel told the man to wait a minute and hurriedly telephoned her father. When she returned, the man had left.

The police are searching.

Crops No Alibi For City Guy's Woes and Owes

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

February is going to be better than January because it's three days shorter.

They saved the farmer's home in January. But how about doing something for the city mugg?

How about the metropolitan refugee who can't pay his office rent? He rides home on a bankrupt subway, eats his groceries on tick off an installment table in an apartment house which is in escrow.

His only solace is a ride in a motor car which is about to be commandeered by a financing company. There is a mortgage on the garage which waterproofs it against everything but foreclosure. If he goes into court to plead he can't pay his alimony they fine him $11 for parking near a fire plug.

Tomorrow's breakfast is in an electric refrigerator which is in a wagon going back to the home factory. While he is trying to stall the tailor off for another 60 days his lumbago comes back and his life insurance elapses.

And he has no alibi. He can't say that crops were bad.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—A man whose name was listed as Morris Sanford, 47, was arrested last night on charges of using the mails to defraud and conspiracy to hide $100,000 in assets of a bankrupt furniture concern, the National Home Outfitting Company. He was president of the concern, which had its headquarters in Pittsburgh. The bankruptcy petition was filed in 1928.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 2.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is made up of fine men, honest, and mean well, and if it was water they were distributing it would help the people the way the plan was meant to help. For water goes down hill and moistens everything on its way. But gold or money goes uphill. The Reconstruction loaned the railroads money, medium and small banks money and all they did with it was pay off what they owed to N. Y. banks. See, the money went uphill instead of down. You can drop a bag of gold in Death Valley, which is below sea level, and before Saturday it will be home to Papa J. P.

LAUNCH FIGHT ON DISMISSAL OF PRINCIPAL

Pupils to Be Kept Out Of Classes If Hennon Goes, They Say

Members of a committee of West View citizens seeking to forestall the rumored firing of School Principal H. N. Hennon today threatened to withdraw their children from the public schools if Hennon was ousted.

This announcement was made by former Burgess T. A. Smith, father of four children of public school age, and Mrs. A. E. Jones, Jr., another member of the executive committee of the group defending Hennon, who has been head of West View schools since 1916.

The committee meets tonight to check the names on petitions being circulated by its members and to make plans for a mass meeting protesting against any interference with Hennon's conduct of the schools.

Former Burgess Smith, who credits Burgess D. A. Atkinson, his cousin with the alleged move to oust Hennon, says the names of a majority of the citizens of the borough will be obtained to the petitions demanding Hennon's retention.

Dr. Atkinson said today:

"This fuss is simply the effort of some people to influence the regularly elected school board, which I believe should be able to judge the qualifications of a school principal."

A meeting to protest dismissal of Hennon will be held Saturday or Monday night, the citizens' committee announced. The School Board meets next Tuesday night. It was rumored Hennon will be ousted then and replaced by Robert McKee, assistant principal.

CHARGE FOUGHT BY POOR BOARD

The County Poor Board has sought since 1910 to have the County Controller audit its books, Harry W. McIntosh, attorney for the board, testified today in the equity suit against the Poor Directors.

The Controller has taken the position such an audit is unnecessary since he has no control over the board's expenditures, McIntosh said. The books have been audited by certified public accountants and the audits included in the Controller's annual report, he added.

Questioned concerning the purchase of land, McIntosh said the board considered it bought land at fair prices. He said the Forsythe heirs had asked $500 an acre for their land in 1916, but the board purchased it for $275 an acre in 1924.

The suit, filed by Walter W. Riehl, a taxpayer, seeks to have the directors surcharged for money he alleges was spent illegally.

Witnesses verified Milne's statement that the wife, Mrs. Dorothy E. Milne, now believed to be in New York, wrote the "big brother" offer in a letter. Milne said he met his wife in New Rochelle, N. Y. They were married in 1913. He charged she deserted him for the stage in 1927.

Just when 5-year-old Gloria Romeo was rejoicing over the return of Blackie, Johnny Gongas, 12, of Squirrel Hill, and Queenie lost Bubbles.

Blackie is Gloria's cat. Bubbles is Johnny's dog and Queenie's mate.

Blackie disappeared several days ago after they had cut down a tree in which he became stranded. Just as the Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter was announcing his absence over the air Tuesday night, Blackie scratched on the Romeo doorstep in Dormont to make known he was home from his hair-raising adventures, unharmed, but with a kink in his usually sunny disposition.

Meanwhile, Johnny and Queenie keep vigil at the Gongas windows. Bubbles has been missing since Tuesday.

RELIEF BOARD HEARS ALLEGHENY GROCERS' PROTEST

'PROPAGANDA' REPLY DEFENDS MARKET PLAN

HARRISBURG, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The State Emergency Relief Board has allocated $5,800,000 for jobless relief in Pennsylvania this month.

Of this amount $2,000,000 came from the Talbot state relief fund and $3,800,000 loaned by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The board yesterday approved expenditure of $157,000 for financing administration of relief funds.

A delegation of Allegheny County grocers protested to the board against adoption of the community market system of providing food relief. They were shown copies of letters urging grocers to flood the Governor's office with protests against the markets, and the board's statement that this opposition is "manufactured propaganda."

Led by George E. Rom, Pittsburgh, representing the wholesale grocers of Western Pennsylvania, and Charles von Tagen, secretary of the Pennsylvania Grocers' Association, the delegation proposed a compromise scheme midway between the commissary and the present system of food relief through orders issued on grocers.

The group averred that it could convince the board that retail grocers can supply food to the jobless as cheaply as the community markets. The board directed them to compile data supporting this contention and present it for study.

Gov. Pinchot announced the board has bought 149,000 pairs of shoes at an average cost of $1.13.

The resignation of Senator Frank J. Harris as chairman of the Allegheny County Relief Board was accepted by the state board and the appointment of Augustus K. Oliver as his successor approved. Senator Harris' plans to resign because of pressure of private and other public affairs was made known several weeks ago. Mr. Oliver has been engaged in relief work in the county for some time.

J. Stockton, of Johnstown, and Chester H. Gross, of Manchester, directors.

The organization urged curtailment of road funds in the interest of continuing the high standard of education.

VARE MEN EYE RELIEF FUNDS

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The Republican organization of Philadelphia, headed by William S. Vare, has its eyes on the distribution of state relief funds to the needy.

Recorder of Deeds James M. Hazlett, chairman of the Republican city committee, was on record today as saying that steps to bring the relief funds under the direction of ward leaders may be taken when the next relief bill is framed in the legislature.

Another political development was a verbal blast from Councilman Edward A. Kelly, one of Vare's attorneys, against Edward Martin, republican state chairman. Speaking last night before a group of Republican women, from the same rostrum as Hazlett, Kelly said Martin was false to pre-election pledges and hinted that the state chairman, who considers himself a candidate for governor, is dealing with the drys.

PLAY FOR FUN, DEAN URGES

E. A. Holbrook, dean of engineering at the University of Pittsburgh, does not believe in the "win or die" spirit in play. In a talk last night at the Westinghouse Club, Wilkinsburg, he spoke on "The Use of Leisure Time," and contrasted the French idea of light play with the American idea of intensive play.

Dean Holbrook pointed out that the problem of using leisure time formerly touched only the privileged classes, but modern machinery and inventions have changed conditions so that the average man must learn how to employ that part of his life not taken up with earning a living, eating and sleeping. He said:

"We are learning how to use our leisure time when we get the spirit that whatever we play at is fun."

EINSTEIN FIGHTS PERSONAL TAX ON SAVINGS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 2.—Limitation on collection of personal property taxes will be sought in a bill to be introduced by Senator Morris Einstein, of Pittsburgh, next week.

The proposal would eliminate bank accounts as taxable. It would be statewide in effect. It would not interfere with sections of the law levying on stocks, bonds or other securities and notes and mortgages.

Einstein's bill is the outcome of the effort this year of the County Commissioners to collect fully on the personal property of citizens of Allegheny County. Previously this source of revenue has been practically ignored, and the majority of Allegheny countians were puzzled when they received the returns. Other counties in the state have ignored the tax, as has Allegheny, but this year are reported seeking revenue through it.

The personal property levy at one time went to the state, but in 1913 the law was amended, turning the revenue over to the counties.

The personal property tax which is being vigorously collected by Allegheny County rests on a sound legal foundation, in the opinion of County Solicitor J. P. Fife.

The county's right to collect a tax on personal property rests on the act of June 17, 1913, and its amendments, according to Fife.

PINCHOT ROAD PROGRAM HIT BY LEWIS

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 2.—Political foes of Gov. Gifford Pinchot today found a maximum of comfort and satisfaction in the evidence recorded at the opening hearing of a joint legislative investigation designed to lay bare the nature of the administration's rural road program.

Members of the committee subjected Sam S. Lewis, state secretary of highways, to an unpleasant grilling of two and a half hours and drew from him the admission that roads no longer are built because of general public needs.

Secretary Lewis admitted bluntly that there is neither rule nor reason to govern the building of rural highways and that no traffic counts ever are taken either before a road is built or afterwards.

Repeatedly he took refuge in the language of the act which permits the secretary of highways to build roads "with the consent of the governor." He made it rather plain that the construction is done because some unseen person, somewhere, has recommended the move.

Members of the committee in the initial hearing made it plain that while there may be no reduction in the varied taxes which motorists pay, the chances of an increase to support the proposed larger rural road program are very slim.

WIFE OF DODGE, HEIR TO MOTOR RICHES, DROPS DIVORCE

SAYS SHE CAN'T FIGHT WEALTH OF HUSBAND

By JOHN KOBLER
International News Service.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Convinced that she cannot "fight money," Mrs. Muriel Sisman Dodge, daughter of a wealthy Detroit contractor, has abandoned plans to file suit for divorce against Horace E. Dodge, Jr., heir to a $37,000,000 motor fortune, she revealed to International News Service today.

Mrs. Dodge declared, however, that a "judical separation" from her husband was under consideration. She insisted upon their estrangement in spite of denials from Dodge in Bermuda and his assertion that they exchanged cables almost daily.

In an exclusive interview, Mrs. Dodge charged that the break-up of their romance was due to Mrs. Hugh Dillman, Dodge's mother. She said:

"I am most anxious to get a divorce, but I have decided not to file suit because I cannot fight money.

"Meanwhile, a judicial separation is under consideration. This may be dropped, however, if Horace will consent to certain terms concerning finances and the custody of our children.

"This trouble all started nine months ago, before the birth of my daughter. Mrs. Dillman took a sudden dislike to me and influenced my husband against me. He then informed London merchants that he would no longer be responsible for my debts."

The Dodges were married here in 1928.

HART, WRITER, MAYOR, DIES

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Daniel L. Hart, 66, for 12 years mayor of Wilkes-Barre and nationally known as a playwright and orator, died today.

Hart, mayor since 1920 and the only man to have served the city for more than two years, died in a hospital where he had undergone two operations within a month. The second operation was performed Saturday.

A foe of prohibition and a fighter for Sunday baseball, Mayor Hart urged the return of beer with "four inches of foam."

A champion of anthracite miners' interests, in 1922 he accompanied mayors of other cities in the hard coal region to Washington in an effort to have President Warren G. Harding settle a coal strike.

A leaning toward writing which started him at 19 as publisher of the Merry World, led him through newspaper experience to playwriting. After publication of the Merry World, he published the Pen and Pencil, an illustrated newspaper. Later he served on the news staff of the Scranton Times, the old Wilkes-Barre Leader and News-Leader, and the Diocesan Record, a Catholic publication.

Ruben Pittman, 20, today was on his way to the Gilby State Prison at Montgomery, Ala., from which he escaped three times in three years, according to Inspector of City Detectives Frank R. Boyd.

Inaugural Ball May Evade Sunday Ban

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—District of Columbia officials figured out today that the inaugural ball, Saturday night, March 4, may escape the law which would halt the festivities at midnight.

Edward H. Thomas, assistant corporation counsel, discovered that under an amendment to the original Sunday closing law a special permit may be issued to allow the ball to be continued beyond the Saturday midnight deadline.

DREADED

DAYS!

Poor Ida! An old-fashioned girl who lets her suffering make her miserable. She does not realize—and perhaps does not believe—that a tablet of Midol would swiftly end her pain. Midol does abolish such suffering. It keeps a woman entirely comfortable throughout a trying time. The process becomes just an incident, for Midol blocks all possibility of such pain. Midol is nothing like the ordinary headache tablet, but a remedy that goes straight to the seat of this organic pain. It does not affect the perfectly natural and necessary process, but all of that pain is done for within a few minutes of the time Midol is taken! Not a narcotic. All drug stores; ten tasteless tablets in a slim little box; just ask for Midol.

Journey

What shall be said that matters even then
In that brief moment when our lives shall touch?
Only the commonplaces uttered when
The truth betrays a speaker over-much.

There will be noise and motion in the place,
The bright confusion swift and swifter rise.
Oh, let me look with wisdom on your face,
Content to leave a secret in your eyes!

Since I must love you, let my love be still,
Lest it be spent, unwanted; let my hand
Be firm in yours, and loose it when you will.
Women must bear these things . . . I understand.

We shall say little—and the eager train
Will take me, loving you, away again.

Oop!

A fellow notorious for taking the ideas and style of others was being panned by Jules Levine last night.

"Oh, well," said a defender, "you can at least say this for him—he certainly is raising the level of some things."

"Lifting it, you mean!" corrected Jules.

Izzy Elinsonisms

Well, now "Prince" Mike can truthfully say that he has been exiled from the Palace.

The price of theater tickets these days is so low—it's silly to be a critic!

Oh, Is That So?

During a lull in the phone conversation we asked George Jean Nathan if he enjoyed Noel Coward's newest hit as much as we did.

"Nope," he replied.

"Oh, you're crazy!" we said; "you're positively crazy!"

"No, I'm not," was the retort; "I'm a great critic."

Phlugoodnessakes!

During the play, Noel Coward and Alfred Lunt, both inebriated after steady brandy drinking, found amusement in such words as "rigmarole," "macaroni," and so forth.

One of the funniest sounding words we've ever heard is "Phlug." What does "phlug" mean? "Phlug" is the wool or waste a fellow usually finds in his coat pockets after he removes all the other debris. You toy with it between your fingers—that's phlug.

Quiteso, Quiteso

Under the editorial title "Good-Natured Gossip" the N. Y. Times for Jan. 26 told how Sinclair Lewis, the Nobel Prize Winner, has been the victim of many unfounded newspaper reports. He has been spoken of as ill with bronchitis and pneumonia, whereas he is enjoying the best of health. He has also been reported buying homes in Austria, and English newspapers recently said he is to receive a special post under the Roosevelt regime.

"None of these baseless rumors," observes the Times, "would seem to be in the least actuated by malice or calculated to prove injurious to Mr. Lewis' reputation, and he has taken them with perfect good nature. After all, there is a margin of error which must be allowed to a writing man, whether he is a reporter or a novelist. Think how silly it would be for the American people if it got angry every time a novel appeared that did not depict American life with 100 per cent fidelity!"

Something to Ponder On

An orchard for the worthy,
A scallion for the "spleens."
In vast or petty schemes of life
Nought for the in-betweens!

When the boss of a speakeasy wants to learn from the barkeep how much coin is in the cash register, he uses this code so that any stickups in the place won't be tempted. He asks the bartender:

"How're we doin'?".

"Just passed the Empire State Building," means 34 or 35 dollars, for the Empire State is located at Thirty-fourth street. "Almost at Columbus Circle" means that the till has 59 or 60 dollars in it.

Some times the barkeep says:

"Just reached the Polo Grounds" (155th street.)

Then you'd think the boss would tell you to have one on the house, but he doesn't!"

Joel's Suits Go To Dog

Scandal will out!

The reason Joel McCrea, RKO Radio Pictures star, became Hollywood's "best dressed man" has nothing to do with an affair of the heart.

It was all on account of a dog—and not the kind one "puts on."

Some months ago Richard Dix gave McCrea a setter, together with some advice about how to make it a "one-man dog."

Following Dix's direction, McCrea gave the animal one of his old shoes to play with, also a sweater.

It made the animal a "one-man dog" all right, but it also just about made McCrea a "one-shoe man." The animal, it seems, now has a fixation to rend anything that smells like his master, excepting the master, of course. He keeps the star busy buying new outfits.

Romberg to Conduct Nixon Orchestra

Sigmund Romberg, who wrote the music for George White's "Melody," the new musical romance showing in the Nixon, has consented to conduct the orchestra during the remainder of the engagement. There have been many requests and Mr. Romberg consented to take the baton. "Melody" was generally approved by critics of Pittsburgh in their Tuesday reviews.

COMPOSER -:- Tale of Jongleur Turned Away From Bridges -:- STUDIOS

Composer of 'Melody' Was Soldier and Engineer 20 Years Ago

By GEORGE SEIBEL

George White has invaded a new field with this "Melody" of his which is in the Nixon. From the jazzy world of the "Scandals" he steps into the flowery kingdom of Romance. Perhaps he scents a change in the popular taste—astute showmen know what the public will want week after next.

The big thing about "Melody," of course, is Romberg's music. George White deserves credit for giving him a chance to do something Victor Herbert would have delighted in doing. Ripples, fountains, cascades, Niagaras of melody flow through every scene, as a musical accompaniment to the procession of splendors arranged by George White.

Mr. Seibel

Sigmund is celebrating the twentieth anniversary of his arrival from his native Hungary, and in these 20 years he has produced 65 musical scores. He had Schubert to lean on in "Blossom Time," and the inspiration of Kommersbuch in "The Student Prince," but he has drawn the melodies of "Melody" entirely from his own Magyar soul.

Which makes it all the more strange that he was trained as an engineer, and came to America, after service in the Army, to build bridges and dams.

LUCKY HARD LUCK

It was a piece of lucky hard luck for him that he couldn't find work as an engineer, and had to take a job as pianist in the orchestra of a famous Manhattan restaurant, where Eric von Stroheim was cashier.

Soon he was leader of the orchestra; next he composed some musical numbers, and ere long he supplied the score for a Broadway revue.

He is now an international figure, and his "Rose of France" will have its premiere at the famous Chatelet Theater in Paris.

If George White continues on the path of romantic operetta, begun with "Melody," Romberg could become an American institution like Victor Herbert.

He produced the score of "The Student Prince" in five months, "Blossom Time" in three weeks, and has been known to turn out a new musical number in 20 minutes during a noisy rehearsal.

HIS MUSICAL LIBRARY

Romberg has one of the largest musical libraries owned by an individual. There are about 5,000 complete scores of operas from all lands.

He works by preference in a sound-proof studio—like Thomas Carlyle in his insulated attic.

His hobby is the improvement of the international copyright laws for the protection of American composers. And as an engineer he watches with fascination the encroachment of technocracy upon the field of music. He told me with a shudder of a new invention which makes sound tracks for musical films without an orchestra.

"No wonder," he said, "that the piano used in Belasco's production of 'The Music Master' was sold at auction the other day and brought only $37.50. Music masters soon will need only a pin to scratch a record."

It looks as if George White should have purchased that piano and commissioned Romberg to furnish a score for the popular Klein-Warfield weep-fest.

BARBARA ROGERS OF "42ND STREET" SHOWS HOW TO BE NONCHALENT IF YOU SLIP ON A RUG

SLANDER WEARIES JOAN CRAWFORD

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 2.—Embittered over the recent gossip about her marriage, Joan Crawford will take a trip, a vacation from Hollywood, as soon as the studio officially okays her new picture. She told me this yesterday, and she told me why.

"I have to get away from here to realize how unimportant all this petty gossip really is."

If you've ever seen a study in contrasts, it was Joan at this moment. There she stood, in a blue bicycling costume, minute blue suede hat perched on her head—the picture of jauntiness—while her eyes were stormy and her voice troubled.

"We finish the picture tomorrow," she said. "Then a preview and possibly added scenes. But I'm already packing my things! I want to catch the first train to New York. I want to see Doug and spend days there with him. I want to get away from the tongues of Hollywood.

"Don't mistake me," she added quickly. "I owe a lot to Hollywood. And I shouldn't let the talk bother me, I didn't, at first. I laughed at it. Then it made me mad. The only thing for me, I think, is to go away for a while."

Going away, Joan will step out of the feminine lead in "Soviet," the Russian picture Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer wanted her to make with Clark Gable and Wallace Beery. Yesterday's rumor named Jean Harlow as her successor. Which, of course, would delay "Bomb-Shell," the Hollywood story now in preparation for the screen's platinum blonde.

It's a bit complicated. The studio will have to work it out.

Mervyn Leroy leaned over my table to tell a story about the Roxy regime at Radio City.

The famous showman, it seems, had climbed to the balcony to look down upon the vast auditorium. Just then, four elephants paraded across the stage.

"What!" shouted Roxy. "Cooties in my theater already!"

* * *

If you've been bothering about it, there's no truth to that story of the engagement of Patricia Harper and Jesse Lasky, Jr. The young film official and Jerry Horwin were stepping out at the Beverly Wilshire Sunday night with Celia Ryland, pretty cinema ingenue, and June Grabiner, whose father is vice president of the Chicago White Sox . . . Sitting at the next table to me were Peggy Hopkins Joyce and Grant Withers, and Alice White and Sid Bartlett. Interesting to note that Peggy, who is noted for her jewels, wore only a wedding ring . . . Ernest Lubitsch is becoming quite the man about town. Sunday night he was beauing Irene Biller, Budapest musical comedy star. She's out here studying English, undoubtedly with an eye on the talkies . . . For the information of Mrs. Eddie Robinson, Eddie came without feminine companion. He talks of nothing but getting back to New York. There's a baby due in March, you know . . . The pretty blonde with the Grecian profile was Catherine Dale Owen (remember her in "The Rogue Song?") And that was Lydell Peck with her . . . Billie Dove's squire was Larry Brennon.

* * *

His frst name escapes me, but a young man named Graham is showing the sights of Hollywood to Merle Tottenham, who plays the giggling maid in "Cavalcade" . . . Latest refinement in this host business is demonstrated by Ramon Novarro. His dining room has an arragement of rehostatic controls which enables him to adjust hidden lights so as to best bring out the shades of the women's gowns . . . The week-end's snowstorm at Lake Arrowhead marooned William Bakewell and Lew Ayres, who had gone up for the winter sports.

Did you know that Russell Gleason's grandmother was a ballerina in the days of Frederick the Great?

Points About Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

On the books for performances this afternoon and evening in Syria Mosque, Eddie Cantor and his vaudeville crew will have spent a busy Groundhog Day in Pittsburgh, when the curtain descends in the big Oakland auditorium tonight. With Eddie as master of ceremonies and George Jessel as chief aid, the program was announced to include songs by Cantor, varied specialties and three skits, "Grand Hotel," "Her Wedding Anniversary" and "The Same Old Thing," the first to feature Cantor and Jessel, with Colletta Ryan assisting in the other two. Specialties introduce The Four Abbotiers, dancers; Holland and Knight, steppers also; Bobby Bixley, "The Legirrnaniast;" Prof. Sauerpuss and his dogs, Dorothy Bell and Benny Meroff's orchestra.

The box office sale of seats for "Cavalcade" began this morning in the Nixon. This photoplay version of Noel Coward's drama will open Monday evening in that theater, and will be presented twice daily after the opening show. Each evening there will be an orchestral concert preceding the screening of the picture, the featured roles of which are played by Clive Brook and Diana Wynyard. They head a cast that names 31 speaking parts among the several hundred who appear in scenes covering important events in England from days of the Boer War to the jazz age. Running through it are three successive romances. As a play "Cavalcade" held a London stage for more than 400 performances.

"The Valley of Ghosts," third production of the Little Theater of Homewood, will be given tonight in the Homewood Library Auditorium.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ESPLANADE HOTEL, PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia.—To begin his observation of the night life of Prague, your correspondent did not have to travel very far. I stepped from my room into the hotel elevator, I was taken from my floor to the basement—and there I was in the Esplanade Grill, the best night club in Prague.

The Esplanade Grill proved to be a class spot without much excitement. The orchestra was better than anyone had a right to expect in such a place, one young man even going so far as to croon in my direction in Czechoslovakian. Which was all right with me because it didn't sound so very different from some of the lyrics the boys sing back home.

I was interested in the pay that a Czech orchestra might receive and I made due inquiries. Hold tight while I flash you the results. A good six-piece combination might earn as high as $25 a week in actual pay—and a combination that is no more than average can collect $9 a week. And when I say $9, I don't mean that one man gets that sum; I mean that the entire six share it among them.

In addition to the set salaries, however, every place in town—from the classy Esplanade to the lowest dive—has a large box near the door that is labeled "For the Music." You can leave the club without dropping some dough in the box, but it is not a wise thing to do. Not, at any rate, if you ever expect to return again.

All the orchestras play with one eye on the music and the other eye on the box. Every once in so often the leader leaves the other boys to their playing and strolls over to the box. Then all eyes leave the music and watch the leader. If he ever put his hand in, I'm positive he would be hit with everything from a fiddle to a piano.

The Esplanade proving a trifle boring to both Mr. Ludwig Kwayssar, who is my guide, and me, we decided to hit out for another spot.

As we walked from the Esplanade to the next club, we passed the famous statue of the late Woodrow Wilson. Mr. Kwayssar saluted it sharply and then smiled.

"God bless Mr. Wilson," he murmured. "His statue is my barometer."

"Your barometer?" I repeated. "What are you talking about?"

"It's very simple," he replied. "Whenever I have Americans to guide I never fail to take them first to the Wilson statue. It makes them feel at home and they never fail to discuss Wilson among themselves. If they say he was a great man, I immediately become a Democrat and open up a discussion along those lines.

"If, however, their words point the other way, I immediately become a Republican. I speak glowingly of Mr. Hoover and lament the fact that he was blamed for so many things over which he had no control.

"Either way, then, I cannot lose. The Americans, knowing nothing about me, are highly surprised that a Czech guide should be so well versed in their politics. And they are gratified that my sentiments are their sentiments. My tips leap rapidly, and everybody is satisfied. You see?"

What a man! . . .

In rapid succession, Mr. Kwayssar and I visited the Boccaccio, the Sect Pavillon, the Tabarin, and the Cascada, which is not as bad as it sounds. That sounds like plenty of places for one night, but Mr. Kwayssar assured me there were many more to be seen.

Each cafe works on the same principle. There is a dance that lasts about two minutes. Then there is an intermission of one minute. Then comes a dancr or a singer who lasts about two minutes—and just about lasts, at that. Following which, the orchestra plays again for two minutes. And so on through the night. It's enough to drive anybody crazy.

Since there is an entertainer on the floor every five minutes or so, you might get the impression that these floor shows cost a fortune. But don't be misled. If a club employs six entertainers, they're giving you the biggest floor show in all Prague. You're always looking at the same people, no matter how long you stay. And t' ey're putting on a new number every few minutes.

These night clubs employ the worst female dancers in all the world, and the men aren't far behind. So long as a girl can stand up without caving in, she's a dancer. And so long as she has a face that wouldn't frighten a horse, she is permitted to consider herself an artist.

Accordingly the routine goes something like this: A girl in a red dress comes out, smiles prettily, nods to the orchestra and kicks about eight or nine times. At the end, she nods again to the orchestra—and the boys strike a chord. That's the signal that she's finished and everybody applauds vigorously, including the waiters and a few of the boys in the band who want to take her home that night.

Before you know it she's back on the floor again in a blue dress. She goes through the same routine, the only variation being that she kicks with the other leg. A few minutes later and she returns once more in a yellow dress—but this time she kicks with both legs if she is able to manage it. If she isn't and she gets tangled up, it's okay with the customers just the same. They appreciate art in any form.

Leaving art for a moment, I'd like to tell you of the manner in which the help is paid over here. In any cafe or restaurant, the head waiter is the actual proprietor. The owner pays him a salary of one dollar and fifty cents a month, which is the lowest sum necessary for a legal contract in Czechoslovakia.

And that's all the pay he gets in actual salary.

He is entitled, however, to the 10 per cent that the customer pays on every check. That money remains his—but he must hire his waiters, take care of the linen and purchase all matches, souvenirs and toothpicks out of his 10 per cent. And that toothpick item is no cheap expense in Prague.

In other words, when business is poor, the head waiter is stuck just as badly as the boss and sometimes more. I'd like to see a few of our Broadway head waiters placed on that system. How they'd howl—and what a pleasure it would be to listen to them! . . .

Toward the latter part of the night, when some poor girl was trying desperately to keep in time with the music, I turned to Mr. Kwayssar.

"Ludwig," I said, "I just thought of something. These women are the worst dancers I've ever seen in all my life."

"Quite right," agreed Mr. Kwayssar.

"Well, then," I cried, "there's one thing I can't understand. If some decent dancers came here from France or America, couldn't they make a fortune?"

Mr. Kwayssar nodded slowly.

"Yes, indeed," he agreed. "But who would pay them?"

I never thought of that . . .

PAROLED, FACES CHARGE HERE

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Roger W. Watkins, former Hartford broker, was ordered paroled from the state prison today, but an old charge against him in Pittsburgh may keep him in custody of the law for an indefinite time.

The parole board granted his conditional freedom after his second appearance before it since November, when the Board of Pardons commuted his sentence of from nine and one-half to 15 years to a minimum of four and one-half years.

Prison authorities, while awaiting word from Pennsylvania as to whether Watkins is wanted on the warrant issued when he went to prison in October, 1928, will go ahead with arrangements for his parole. Work must be found for him before he can leave the prison.

The charge against Watkins in Pittsburgh involves a brokerage transaction in connection with his employment in 1925 by the F. C. Schulte Company when he was known as John R. Watkins. One member of the firm was sent to prison for conspiracy to defraud and Watkins disappeared. His National Associated Investors, Inc., of Hartford, collapsed in 1928.

'Cop' Label Held Too Derisive For Police

EVANSTON, Ill., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—"Cop" is too derisive a nickname for a policeman, John B. Blandford, Cincinnati's director of public safety, told the Midwest police conference at Northwestern University. He said:

"Call them 'bobbies' or civic guards."

Blandford blamed the "bullying by many policemen of citizens who commit minor infractions of the law" for the "scant sympathy they receive from the public and the demands that police budgets be cut."

He estimated that a policeman spends an average of one hour out of eight on duty in pursuing criminals. The remainder are spent in traffic duty and "neighborhood activity."

MANY TRAPPED BY SNOW

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—(INS.)—Unprecedented snows in the mountains of California, Nevada, Arizona and Colorado have marooned hundreds of residents and prospectors.

Airplanes and snowplows were undertaking rescue work today over widely separated areas.

An errand of mercy bombing plane was to leave Riverside, Cal., for Las Vegas, Nev., pick up a supply of food and fly northward to the relief of 20 persons snowbound in a prospectors' mountain camp. Two women and a young baby were in the scantily provisioned group.

Another family of five was in distress at a desert mine near Pioche, Nev. Men on snowshoes failed to reach them.

Two hundred residents of Cedar Pines Park in the snowclad San Bernardino Mountains of Southern California have been trapped for two weeks, despite efforts of men with tractors to open a road.

Ohio Town Fills Jobs Of Jailed Officials

STEUBENVILLE, O., Feb. 2.—The town of Stratton has two new officials today while their predecessors are serving federal sentences in the Harrison County Jail for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. Council President Dale Goddard became mayor when Frank Burns, who was serving his fourth term as mayor, was given 30 days in jail, and Mont Keeder was named marshal to succeed Charles Wickem, who got 60 days.

Roosevelt May Use Old Desk of T. R.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(Universal.)—President-elect Roosevelt may use the plain desk of his distinguished namesake or the ornate desk of President Hoover, it was said today at the White House.

Both are in excellent condition. The old Roosevelt desk is of mahogany and was used by succeeding Presidents until Mr. Hoover accepted one as a gift from a furniture association. The Roosevelt desk is now used by a secretary.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 2.—A crowd of 4,000 bartered goods by the auction method at the Canfield Fairgrounds, several miles from here, yesterday. Commodities from baby carriages to bawling calves were brought to the grounds for auction with each family trading what it did not want and getting what it did want. Farmers from Eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvaia participated.

SECOND MURDER TRIALS UPHELD

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The State Supreme Court by a four to three decision held yesterday that discharge of a jury trying a defendant charged with murder in the first degree does not bar trial on a charge of murder in the second degree.

Justice William J. Schaffer wrote in the case of Joseph Simpson, a Negro:

"Criminal law must be moved forward to meet the new conditions which confront organized society, if its law abiding members are to be protected."

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—David Maier, 60, a friend of former Mayor James J. Walker and a witness before the Hofstadter Legislative Committee last summer, died suddenly yesterday in a hotel barber shop.

"Say! even if you never hit 50 you need an oil that can do 100!"

"WHAT!" you may say, "Me—a 30-mile-an-hour driver—need Gulf Supreme, that 100-mile-an-hour oil?"

Yes! Think a minute and you'll see why . . .

The faster an oil travels, the more punishment it gets. And the oil that is good at 100-miles-an-hour, is a better, safer oil at ANY speed!

It gives extra protection against wear. Extra protection against heat. Extra protection against costly lubrication troubles.

Gulf Supreme can take super-punishment! That is not just a claim. In two of the stiffest tests an oil could get, Gulf Supreme proved itself a "fighting oil" . . .

First, by successfully lubricating a motor running at nearly twice the heat of a normal speeding engine for 14 solid hours!

Second, by out-performing special racing oils in an Official AAA test on the Indianapolis Speedway. On a sizzling day last August, it lubricated a roaring Duesenberg racer in a one-hour, non-stop run — at an average speed greater than 100-miles-an-hour! Nearly two miles a minute on the straight-a-ways!

WARNING!
. . . OIL that isn't good at high speeds, isn't good enough at ANY speed!

Drive into any Gulf station. Drain worn oil. Re-fill with Gulf Supreme. Watch it cut costs. Minimize repairs. And last longer! Use the winter grade in severe weather.

There's infinite variety in benefits, which is a good thing for society folk, for with the exception of an occasional small luncheon or dinner party or a wedding, also usually small nowadays, benefits constitute our sole social life.

One of the most attractive—and informal—benefits in ages was the one Mrs. Edward B. Lee and Miss Alice Benning gave yesterday in Mrs. Lee's home, the Cedar Chest, William Penn way, across from th Yale-Harvard-Princeton Club.

Mrs. Lee and Miss Benning gave the affair for the benefit of their private welfare work among needy families.

Guests dropped in for bridge and a view of the Lee's unusual home, one of the most interesting in Pittsburgh—all afternoon and evening. And some just came for tea.

* * *

At the Kingsley Auxiliary benefit bridge, February 11, in the home of Mrs. F. I. Merrick, Morewood Heights, there's going to be a display of Kingsley pottery, and a sale, too, I might add. This pottery, done under the supervision of the Buhl Foundation, is ever so attractive, by the way.

Pottery Display

Mrs. Edward Thompson will be in charge of the pottery sale at the bridge. Others heading committees will be Mrs. Rankin Furey, who'll have charge of a bevy of aides; Mrs. Carl Collins, of tea; Mrs. Houston Hill, of cake, and Mrs. David Gaston, of cards.

An artist-member of the Auxiliary will make the posters—Mrs. Harold Thomas.

Mrs. William E. Schmertz III, is president of the Auxiliary board, as I've mentioned before; Mrs. Charles Todd will be in charge of tickets; Mrs. Donald Pettit, of publicity; Mrs. Arthur Little, candy, and Mrs. Malcolm Leech, arrangements.

* * *

I have some news of our travelers.

Mrs. Oliver L. Smith and Mrs. Philip Chess are going to motor to St. Petersburg, Fla., to visit their father and mother, the James R. Sterretts, who are wintering there.

Take Trip By Motor

Mrs. James B. Stevenson will spend the remainder of their winter in California with her brother.

The Pittsburgh Golf Club, the scene of so much of the gaiety of social life in Pittsburgh, will have a Valentine costume party Saturday, February 11, in place of the regular Saturday night bridge. Mrs. William P. Witherow is chairman of the committee arranging the affair.

Duplicate contract is intriguing many. And there'll be the beginning of a progressive duplicate contract bridge tournament Monday morning in the Edgeworth Club with Mrs. Nelson R. Van Kleeck in charge. Her aides will be Mrs. Francis H. Dunham and Mrs. George Cass Hutchinson.

At the brilliant concert given last night by Henry Harris at the Young Men and Young Women's Hebrew Association, a group of the social set deeply interested in music and the artistic and intellectual circles of Pittsburgh were represented.

Seen at Concert

Mrs. A. P. Brill, Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Mrs. George Pomeroy Bassett, Mrs. Samuel Hamilton, Mrs. John E. Nelson, Miss Helen Rauh, Mrs. David A. Pitcairn, Mrs. W. C. Dierks, Mrs. T. C. Donovan, Mrs. Jacob S. Payton and the Leo Halfs and their daughters, Madeline and Helen Half, were among those I saw in the large audience.

William R. Shulgold, the Pittsburgh artist; Marianne Genet, the composer; the George Seibels, Mrs. Fred Lissfelt and Mrs. William Lissfelt were others.

The Donald Briens were in the audience, too. Mrs. Brien is Louise Lerch, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

East End Girl To Marry in New York

Miss Virginia Maloney, of Fairmont avenue, daughter of Mrs. Josiah Van Kirk Thompson, of Uniontown, left with her mother last night for New York, where tomorrow she is marrying Andreas V. Iversen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz Iversen, of Bartlett street, in the chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York. Due to the illness of the bride's stepfather, the wedding will be very small, with no attendants, and only the families present. The wedding breakfast will be held in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

The bride is to year a suit of Sirene blue dull crepe with a cape edged in biege fox, and a turban to match the gown trimmed with orange blossoms. Her flowers will be pink orchids.

Mr. Iversen and his bride will sail on the Columbus for a two-month Mediterranean cruise, after which they will go to Paris where they will be joined by the bride's sister, Miss Patricia Maloney, who is studying in Europe. Later they will spend two months in Dubrovink, Jugoslavia. They will reside in Pittsburgh upon their return.

Depression Dance Arranged at Congress

Four events are printed in capitals on the Congress of Clubs calendar for February—the interest group's Valentine breakfast on the fourteenth; the music department's budget card party on the twentieth; a depression dance which the house committee will have on the twenty-fourth and the legislation department's budget party which is set for the twenty-eighth.

The calendar also announces the regular departmental meetings and the weekly classes.

Gossipy Chat

—By NANCY JANE—

While hurrying up Sixth avenue, Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby walked out of one of her slippers and didn't realize it was gone until she stepped on the cold pavement in her thinly stockinged foot.

While a gallant man held the slipper for her to put on, a small giggling crowd formed, much to her amusement.

Benjamin Kountz wore a pillow, strapped to his back, while he was skating with the Snow Birds of 1933 at Duquesne Garden one Sunday afternoon.

We noticed him taking what we would call a self-forced spill on the ice. He really skates quite well as one would expect of the son of that expert figure skater, Mrs. George H. Kountz.

C. A. Woods, Jr., a Sewickley young man, skates remarkably well. He is a faithful member of the Sewickley Hunt. And he plays the pipe organ. As for his business, he's a young member of a law firm in town.

A contributor—a man—sent Patricia Pitt the following plea to have an engagement announced in her column:

"Youth alone must pardon the urgent wish of the High Contracting Parties aforesaid that the announcement appear under a caption in bold type running clear across the page; in their humble view, its supreme and vital importance deserves no less.

"Whether they know that the justly celebrated—and celibate—Horace, the greatest of the Latin poets, advised all and sundry to mingle a little folly with their wisdom, the writer cannot say.

"Whether it be true, as Oscar Wilde says, that hearts are made to be broken, and notwithstanding it is true beyond all question, as Byron says, that hearts, though broken, yet brokenly live on, let me urge it upon you, in both extenuation and expiation, that it is still true youth must be served."

His wish was granted.

Carrick Mothers Celebrate 20th Anniversary

There were birthday presents and wishes galore for the Carrick Mothers' Club when it celebrated its twentieth anniversary yesterday. The little clubhouse was filled for both afternoon and evening gatherings, many of the club husbands attending the latter session, at which Miss Ella Vogel gave a humorous and exceedingly clever talk, which included the club's history in rhyme. There was music by a trio under the direction of Julius Glasser and Mrs. Sarah R. Pierce, who was the club's second president and who presided, presented each past president with a bit of original poetry.

A letter was received from Mrs. John M. Phillips, founder and first president, who is attending the Governor's conference in Harrisburg. Mrs. Phillips, who is club custodian, presented the club's fifth Liberty Loan flag, framed.

Mrs. Wesley P. Cochran presented the Mothers with a floor lamp, a gift from the Girls' Auxiliary of which she is president and the Junior Auxiliary, through its president, Audrey Claus presented a table lamp. Mrs. Robert Phillips' gift was a lace table cloth.

Music in the afternoon was by Ruth McCombs Allen, with Alice Braund Ramsey accompanying, and a talk on "Memory's Garden" was given by Mrs. Charles M. Bregg, club editor of the Sun-Telegraph.

SATIN COMES TO THE FORE FOR EVENING FASHIONS THIS YEAR

FASHIONABLE women are wearing satin again. After a long-drawn session with crepes and duvetyns and other dull-surface material, women like the contrast of the brilliance of satin. As would be expected in such a circumstance, the smartest new satins are the glossiest possible—even to the point of being waxy in finish, and gleaming under lights as if they were polished.

* * *

THE MOST successful of the new satin dresses are—naturally—the simplest. Those which avoid folds and ruffles and frills and rely on the pure beauty of the fabric and the lines of the natural figure.

* * *

JUST SUCH a dress is the dinner dress at the right in today's sketch. At the back it hangs from shoulder to hem with only a single seam on all its surface; at the front a half-belt holds in the dress to the waistline curves. The entire dress is black, and undecorated.

* * *

FOR THOSE women who shy at sudden changes in fashion, the designer has done a half-satin, half-crepe dress—also in today's sketch. It is in pale violet—almost white under night lights, and has no touch of contrasting color.

* * *

THE SATIN portions are cleverly placed—in a softly folded V-shaped yoke, and in a half-sash that is only in evidence at the back and side.

BOTH dresses are in formal floor-length.

NEW PITT RECORD FOR BANISHMENTS

WHILE THERE MAY be some doubt as to whether the new 10-second rule in basketball has done away with stalling, there is no question that it has made the game faster and brought an increase in fouls. By adding a neat 37-to 31 victory over Geneva to their impressive string last night, the dashing Dukes demonstrated again that the playing systems of good teams have not been affected. And it has been shown by Pitt and others from game to game that on a large court a quintet with good passers can still use a delayed offense. But the records of Pitt players make it clear that one effect of the new regulation has been to cause more physical contact and add largely to the number of fouls.

Russ Ochsenhirt

In the past, if as many as three Panthers were ejected from games during a season for four personal fouls, that season was out of the ordinary. A campaign that saw four Blue and Gold passers ejected was a rarity. But this year Pitt players have been banished from the court on no fewer than 12 occasions in 10 games. Russ Ochsenhirt, who will be out of the Fordham game in New York tomorrow night because of press of examinations, leads the team in being ejected. He has been sent out of four games. Don McCamant, Charley Hughes and Claire Cribbs are runners-up, each having been banished twice, while Capt. Don Smith and Skippy Hughes have been put out once.

REPORTS THAT THE Cardinal management has expressed a willingness to talk business with the Cubs on a southpaw pitcher trade if Chicago will consent to give up Woody English are easy to believe. Any club would be glad to give more than an average left-hand hurler for the Bruin infielder.

But the later rumor that the Cubs are considering it causes only a laugh. Before the Giant-Cardinal trade, Chicago could have obtained two southpaws, Bill Walker and Jim Mooney, in exchange for English, but turned it down. No doubt the St. Louis proposal will be treated the same way. The Cubs need a left-hander, but they need English even more.

NOW MANAGER AND part owner of the Blues, Tris Speaker declares Kansas City to be one of the best three minor league spots in baseball. The two others, he says, are St. Paul and San Francisco.

Kansas City always has been a great ball town. It even made the National League for one year, 1886, and it was the Kansas City franchise that was transferred to Pittsburgh when this city entered the National in 1887. Kansas City also was in the Federal League.

THEY HAVE LOCATED old Fred Toney, once star right-hand pitcher in the National League, living quietly on a farm not far from Nashville, Tenn. Toney holds a place in history as the victorious hurler in the only game ever played in the major leagues in which neither of the contending pitchers allowed a hit for nine full innings. His opponent was Hippo Jim Vaughn, of the Cubs, and the game was played on May 2, 1917. Vaughan was reached for a run by the Reds in the tenth inning, while Toney went on to complete 10 innings without yielding a hit.

Fred Toney

THOUGH THAT GAME never was equaled for hitless nine-inning pitching on both sides, Toney was not the only big leaguer to go 10 innings without allowing a safety. Three others have done it, and one of them lost his game while another got only a tie.

Harry McIntire, of Brooklyn, held the Pirates hitless for 10 frames on August 1, 1906, but lost out, 1 to 0, in the thirteenth. Sam Kimber did the same for Brooklyn against Toledo in the American Association on October 4, 1884, but darkness caused the game to end in a scoreless tie in the eleventh. George Wiltse, of the Giants, pitched no-hit ball for 10 innings on July 4, 1908, to beat the Phillies, 1 to 0.

DISPUTED BOXING DECISIONS are not confined to Pittsburgh. Differences of opinion are part of the game everywhere. Billy Jacob, one of the New York judges whose verdict in favor of Abe Feldman over Johnny Rousseau recently was loudly booed, thinks the disapproval of the crowd often is due to a failure to see the body blows.

Jacob says he voted for Feldman because the latter outgeneraled and outfought Rousseau, and because Abe's body punches were more effective than his opponent's blows to the head.

"A JUDGE OR a referee must not allow his judgment to be swayed by the crowd," Jacob says. "I put ring generalship first and aggressiveness second, provided it is not meaningless aggressiveness. Effective hitting comes third. Infighting and body punching must be counted, though the crowd in the balcony and the back of the house cannot see the effects from that distance, as was the case in the Feldman-Rousseau bout. Feldman scored steadily with effective punches to the body, which the gallery fans couldn't see. Rousseau's scoring at long range looked better to them. That is true of many bouts where decisions are disputed."

IN DISCUSSING THE great Jem Driscoll among the good little boxers who preceded Seaman Watson here from Great Britain, an old-timer recalls that Driscoll contributed more than his own great fighting to the prestige of British boxing. For it was Jem who developed Jimmy Wilde.

Working in Driscoll's public house in Cardiff, Jimmy had an opportunity to learn some of the ring magic of his employer, rated the game's most elusive boxer with the possible exception of Young Griffo. Driscoll was a willing teacher and Wilde an eager pupil, and as Jem faded Jimmy came on to be the world flyweight king.

THERE ARE FORGOTTEN horses as well as forgotten men. The change from fame to obscurity in the turf game is a quick one. In 1931 Mike Hall won the Agua Caliente Handicap and his earnings for the year totaled $112,975. In 1929 Hi-Jack finished a close second to Whichone in the Futurity and beat out Gallant Fox.

Benny Borgman

Now they're only selling platers, and failures at that. In selling races at Hialeah Park, Hi-Jack was entered to be sold for $2,500, and Mike Hall was entered to be claimed for $4,000. Worth a fortune not a great while back, neither horse was given a passing thought by the crowd. There were no claimants.

BENNY BORGMAN, forming with Carl Husta the heavy offensive for the Paterson (N. J.) professional basketball team, scheduled to meet the Rosenblum Celtics at Motor Square Garden next Thursday, is also a high light in minor league baseball. According to Jeff Fitzgerald, of the South Hills, who played in the New York-Pennsylvania League with Borgman, the latter is a fine infielder, hitter and baserunner and is going to get a trial in the International League. Benny once was a member of the Celtics and later played on the Ft. Wayne team for five seasons, always ranking at or near the top of the American League in scoring.

MANAGER TERRY ALSO SEEKS OUTFIELDER

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—With 21 players under contract and Manager Bill Terry due to reach town today, the New York Giants are expecting to hear of something happening soon.

Terry, who first set the pace in trading during the major league meetings in December and then led the way in getting players' names on contracts, has the annual Baseball Writers' dinner as the principal purpose of his visit with some discussion of the situation with club officials on the side, but Giant fans will be rather disappointed if he returns to Memphis without doing any dickering for new players.

It is known that he is looking for another good outfielder and a starting pitcher, perhaps Dazzy Vance, of Brooklyn.

THREE MORE SIGN

Three more signed contracts reached the Giant offices yesterday to make up the 21 total. They bore the names of Gilbert English and Arthur McLarney, young infielders, and Harry Danning, who caught for the Giants' Winston Salem farm last season.

The one-a-day system of the Brooklyn Dodgers was continued today with the word that Clyde Sukeforth, reserve catcher who did comparatively little work for the Dodgers last season, had sent in his contract with signature affixed.

ALEXANDER, SEEDS SIGN

BOSTON, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The Boston Red Sox reported the signing of two important members of their prospective 1933 cast. They were Dale Alexander, slugging first baseman who led the American League batters after coming from Detroit last year, and Bob Seeds, outfielder obtained in a trade with the Chicago White Sox.

LAZZERI A HOLDOUT

BURLINGAME, Cal., Feb. 2.—(INS.)—Tony Lazzeri, infielder for the New York Yankees, has sent his 1933 contract back with the announcement that he would take no salary cut. He said:

"I got a cut last year and I expected it, but I didn't expect one this year and I won't take it; not a thin dime. The contract figures come up or Tony stays right at home.

"The club made money, so why should the hired help have their salaries cut?"

ROOKIES SOUGHT

Two rookies from the South had the way paved for them to get into the major leagues if they can make the grade. Joe Hornsby, 18-year old infielder from the Atlanta City League, joined up with the St. Louis Cardinals while George Sanders, University of Richmond freshman pitcher, was considering a tryout offer from Washington.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE OLDEST HOUSE IN THE UNITED STATES—St. Augustine, Fla., is considered the oldest city within the United States, antedating any other city by about 40 years. It contains what is said to be the oldest house in the United States, erected by monks of St. Francis, who came here with the city's founder, Pedro Menendez, in 1565. It stands in what now is St. Francis street, and is made of coquina, the ancient cement made of shells and shell lime. Its age is said to be attested by the records in the archives of the Church at Rome.

FELDMAN STARS AS TEAM TOPS GENEVA, 37-31

By JESS CARVER

Maybe there is something to this doping of athletic encounters via the comparative score method at that.

Anyway, the Dukes defeated Geneva here last night by a six-point margin at 37 to 31, and if you'll stick around for a short paragraph you'll see that the winning margin could have been read in the stars—or something. Follow now—

Westminster beat the Dukes by a single point. Geneva won over Westminster by four points. Four and one are five, or were back in the days when the teacher used to insist on a certain young man sticking around after school to get that fifth multiplication table correct. Now then—Geneva nosed out Tech by only one point, while the Dukes won by 12—giving the Bluffites an 11-point edge there. Take five from 11 and in most cases you'll get six—the margin by which the Dukes won last night. It was five in a row for the locals.

Whew—boy, fetch the adding machine and an aspirin.

AULTMAN IS STAR

If Geneva had possessed a lad able to keep pace with the scoring splurge of the clever Cliff Aultman, the Dukes might not have taken last night's encounter, which was a real one all the way and played before a packed house. Cliff bagged himself seven field goals and one foul for a high point total of 15, one point more than was scored by Art Feldman, of the Dukes, who threw five field goals and four fouls. Oddly enough, Feldman and Aultman were playing one another.

The Dukes held a slight lead until the score reached the 9-to-9 stage in the first half, when Geneva broke away to run its total to 14—throwing the Duquesne bench in consternation and Coach Chick Davies into a state closely approaching apoplexy. Here the locals rallied, however, and before the Covenanters could tally again, the Red and Blue ran up eight points to lead at 17 to 14. Geneva tied the score once more before the half ended but Feldman flipped a long one half a minute before the rest period to establish his team in a two-point lead.

NAVE PLAYS WELL

Coach Ken Loeffler, of Geneva, introduced a newcomer into his lineup in lanky Ellis Nave. Nave played a fine game, and it looked like maybe the Dukes' admitted edge at the center position would not hold so good.

Nave scored a field goal as the second half got under way to knot the count, and Manning made good on a pair of fouls a few minutes, or seconds, later to tie it again at 21-all, but after that the home boys went to work with a vengeance and pounded into a commanding lead, which Geneva, despite Aultman's fine work, never was able to whittle away. At one time Duquesne led by nine points at 36 to 27, but this advantage faded to the final half-dozen points as the contest drew into its dying moments.

While Feldman served as the spearhead of the Duquesne attack, once again it was Dudey Moore who provided the spark of the drive. Moore, despite a still tender knee, played his usual steady, dependable game.

Paul Birch cut no small figure in the scoring, ringing up 11 points on five field buckets and one foul. He missed three free throws.

CROWD JAMS GYM

As always, the traditional rivals packed 'em away like sardines. Graduate Manager Holohan even sold standing room in the lobby.

Three of the boys left the game on personal fouls, Geneva losing both Aultman and Manning, which did not do the Beaver Fallians cause any good, and Marty Reiter departing from the local lineup. Aultman drew three short boos and a tiger when he departed, but the crowd quickly recovered and gave him a cheer. You couldn't blame the folks for being glad to see Clifford depart. As long as he was in there, he looked like money in the bank, or in this case like a field goal on the scoreboard. The lineup:

Dukes.	G.	F.	Pt.	Geneva.	G.	F.	Pt.
Moore (AC), f	1	1	3	Aultman, f	7	1	15
Birch, f	5	1	11	Ginsberg, f	0	1	1

CHICAGO GETS BOUT TERMS

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The Max Schmeling-Max Baer heavyweight fight was virtually assured for Chicago after Promoter Jack Dempsey yesterday informed officials of the Century of Progress Exposition that fulfillment of two conditions would decide his plans to hold the battle here, probably during the second week in June.

First, Dempsey said, was the passage of an amendment to allow 15-round bouts in Illinois, an amendment already in form to go before the Legislature next Tuesday. A second factor Dempsey said, will be an agreeable rental for the use of Soldier Field.

Mayor Anton Cermak assured Dempsey he would use his influence in speedy passage of the 15-round amendment.

Joe Marcus Passes 'Watson Test' For Detroit Skeptics

DETROIT, Feb. 2.—The Michigan Boxing Commission put its stamp of approval on Joe Marcus, of Pittsburgh, today as the opponent of Tracey Cox, noted puncher, in the main bout at the Olympia tomorrow night after giving him the "Seaman Watson" test in a local gymnasium yesterday.

Just as Watson, the British featherweight champion, was compelled to work out in public to quiet skeptics before his bout with Fidel La Barba in New York last week, Marcus was ordered to go through his paces before members of the Commission and newspapermen.

The verdict was favorable, and the Marcus-Cox bout will serve as the headliner, over Billy Wallace's 10-round bout against a local favorite.

SOCCER SERIES RESUMED

By TOM BIRKS

The Clan Douglas soccer eleven faces a stiff task as it meets Mt. Lebanon in the second of a home-and-home series in the first round of the West Penn cup at Westinghouse High School field on Saturday afternoon.

This is the first year that the local governing body has tried home and home systems with total goals to count if the teams split the series. Douglas is faced with a pleasant afternoon, starting two goals behind the fast stepping bunch of firemen led by Joe Luxbacher.

The German Sport Club meets Springdale at Leslie Park in the same tourney, but the Germans go into the game only one goal behind the upriver team and should even matters in short order.

Sunday, Curry will get a real test for the forthcoming game with Cleveland Slavia by meeting Moon Run in the National amateur cup at South Park.

Higgins to Speak At State Luncheon

Coach Bob Higgins, of Penn State, will address the weekly luncheon of the Pittsburgh Penn State Club at Kaufmann's at noon tomorrow.

The State football coach will tell the local State alumni of the results of the school's new policy of athletics on a non-scholarship basis.

Colombo Defeats Battling Gizzy

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Jimmy Colombo, Clarksburg, won the judges' decision over Battling Gizzy, Pittsburgh, in a 10-round bout here last night. Colombo weighed 142 and Gizzy 138.

U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, and Jimmy Riley, Fairmont, fought six rounds to a draw in the semi-final.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Memories . . . What is so dear to the heart as memories? . . . News from Chicago that Packy McFarland has been named to serve on the Illinois Boxing Commission stirred memories in the familiar white-haired head of Tommy Grant, timekeeper at the local boxing shows . . . It took him back to the night of the great Packy's only appearance in a bout in Pittsburgh, against Bert Keyes, of New York, in the Labor Temple, up on the Hill . . . That was 'way back in 1911, on the night of February 6, in fact . . . It'll be exactly 22 years ago come next Monday.

Grant, a former boxer, handled Joe Clark, of Wilkes-Barre, who was fighting out of Braddock at the time, against Frankie Dailey, of Latrobe, in the semi-final . . . After this bout, McFarland asked him to work in his corner and Tommy was only too glad to oblige . . . He is not certain, but he thinks Buck Crouse was the other second . . . The extremely clever McFarland was a handy winner in the six-round bout.

Just a memory, but a cherished one, of a night "behind" a truly great ringman . . . Grant has been at the ringside of many important bouts, and knows all of the rules and wrinkles of the game inside out . . . He is one of the most competent of the commission officials.

Frank Klaus, former middleweight champion of the world, tells a good story of an occurrence at one of the local clubs. . . . He had a dressing room argument over conditions surrounding a bout in which one of his boxers was a principal. . . . As he won his point and walked away with a satisfied smile, and perhaps a pardonable "hmmpf" or two, his adversary in the argument, somewhat ruffled, remarked, "When you've been around this game as long as I've been," and then he caught himself, realizing the ridiculousness of the situation.

One of the keenest students of human nature and behaviorism is Dr. H. C. Carlson, the Pitt basketball coach and health director. . . . Dr. Carlson has seen many phases of this thing we call life, as a practitioner and sports leader, and it is not strange that he has been able to work out a line of reasoning psychology that is invaluable to him in his handling of the thousands of young men with whom he comes into contact in his line of duty . . . An interesting conversationalist, he is a many-sided man, and it is worth anybody's while to sit down with the good doctor for a friendly chat on this, that and the other thing, as this writer did with much pleasure just the other day.—HARRY KECK.

Pirates Reduce Price of Season Box Seats

A substantial reduction in the price of season boxes has been announced by officials of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club. The cost of reserving an entire box of eight seats for the 1933 season will be $165, including the government tax, as compared with the $220, which has been the tariff on the favored seats.

Holders of season's boxes pay the regular admission fee upon entering the ball park.

The action of the Pirate officials was entirely independent of any other club as the change does not affect the admission price. In the matters of admission fees, the league as a whole must act before a revision can be made.

BOZEMAN FACES COCHRAN IN BILLIARD TEST TONIGHT

YOUNG STAR'S TITLE HOPES AT STAKE

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Back in title contention after the best game of the tournament, Young Jay Bozeman, of Vallejo, Cal., tonight will attempt to throw the battle for the world's three cushion billiard championship into a three-way deadlock by defeating Welker Cochran, of San Francisco.

Bozeman, standing on the verge of elimination from the major portion of the $20,000 prize money, last night survived by defeating Augie Kieckhefer, Chicago's deposed champion, 50 to 30, in a near record-breaking match that lasted only 28 innings.

If Cochran defeats Bozeman and Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., the crown is all his. But if Bozeman hands Cochran a setback all three will be tied.

In defeating Kieckhefer, Bozeman set a best game record and the high run for the current championship. He started off with runs of five and seven, clicked off 13 points, oddly enough, in the thirteenth inning and won easily.

Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, pushed Arthur Thurnblad, of Chicago, out of a tie for fifth place money in the afternoon by defeating the former titleholder, 50 to 49, in 58 exciting innings.

Thurnblad took an early lead but lost his opportunity to go out by getting blanks in the final four innings as Reiselt scored three over the same stretch.

JOE RUGGIZZONI SAVES SHOW AT MOOSE

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Joe Ruggizzoni—
Hees-a no bologny.

At least that was the sentiment of the fans who crowded into the Moose Temple arena last night for the second boxing show under Jim McGirr's auspices and saw Joe save a bad situation by giving Frankie Goosby, crack local Negro middleweight, the toughest fight the latter has had since he came around here more than a half-year ago. This after Ruggizzoni's buddies from Detroit had been stopped in each of the first three scheduled eight-round bouts against local talent.

ITALIAN WINS CROWD

Ruggizzoni, an Italian-born mixer, built along the ample lines of—well, a battleship, for instance, went to close quarters at the bell in the first round and there he stayed all night, his head on his barrel chest and his arms pumping away to the head and body. He gave the sharp-shooting Goosby little chance to get going in his usual style, and, as the bout wore on, the crowd warmed up to Honest Joe and his earnest efforts.

That Goosby won the fight with his cleaner and more solid hitting and received the award of both judges and the referee was beside the point. When it was all over, and the verdict announced, almost every mother's son in that crowd began to boo, and they stayed on to cheer Ruggy, Old Kid, in heartening fashion as he left the ring. Why he had come here virtually unknown, and Goosby, the undefeated, hadn't even dropped him and had had the busiest night he's experienced in a long, long time. You can bet on it that Ruggy will be back soon, because, with the crowd, it's a case of

Hees-a no bologny.

THREE VISITORS STOPPED

It was just plain bad news for Detroit in the other inter-city battles. Charley Baxter, local lightweight, spilled Billy Kelly for nine in the first round and then put him down for the count with a right to the jaw after only 30 seconds of the fifth round. Kelly rallying to make a fair fight in between the floorings.

Andrew Angelino knew when he had enough and quit to Anson Green, Homestead Negro middleweight, with 25 seconds to go in the first round. He was almost stopped with the first punch thrown by Green, came back to floor Green for no count, took a count of eight from a right to the jaw and then steered himself into a gentle left and picked out a spot for the count.

Walter MacTaglen, subbing on short notice against Ray Winbush, Hill Negro welterweight, was overmatched, and Referee Red Robinson called a halt at the end of the second round because the visitor was bleeding profusely from a cut lip.

HAZEL BEATS BIREK

Johnny Hazel and Johnny Birek opened the show with a blistering four-rounder in which Hazel got the decision after a bad start.

Mike Moran and Jock Simco were the judges. It was another snappily-run show, with the last bout over by 10 o'clock.

Between Rounds

Mose Butch and Fidel La Barba, former flyweight champion, have been matched for the main bout at Motor Square Garden one week from Monday night. The bout will mark La Barba's first appearance here. He has been boxing 13 years and his two most recent battles were with Kid Chocolate and Seaman Watson in New York's Madison Square Garden. He was an Olympic star with Jackie Fields, the welterweight ruler.

The Garden's card is complete for next Monday night's show, which will be headlined by a Tony Falco-Harry Dublinsky bout. The Alabama Kid will meet Rosy (Kid) Baker, of Indianapolis, in the eight-round semi-final. Max Elling and Freddie Edwards do a repeat in the second bout, and Johnny Hazel boxes Johnny Hornick. Brownsville amateur lightweight, turning pro under the management of Al Suttle, in the opener.

The Joe Marcus-Tracey Cox bout in the Olympic Arena on Friday tomorrow night has been shoved up to the main bout position, with Billy Wallace and Jimmy Alvarado boxing the 10-round semi-final.

TARTANS LOSE THRILLER TO NOTRE DAME

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 2.—Ed (Moose) Krause is the hero of the Notre Dame campus here today, but any Carnegie Tech adherents in the vicinity will tell you that the timer's gun at the basketball game last night between the Irish and Carnegie Tech was the real hero of the occasion—as far as Notre Dame is concerned.

The Irish defeated the Tartans, 37 to 35 when Krause flipped in a field goal as the final gun cracked. It was the contention of the Tartans that the gun had failed to go off the first time the timer pulled the trigger and that Krause's goal should not have been allowed. Just a second before Krause scored, Crowe's foul tied the score at 35-35.

Tech raced away to a commanding lead at 8 to 2 early in the game, but the Irish tied the score at 12-all. The Krause opened up and at the half, the Ramblers enjoyed a 23 to 15 advantage, three goals in rapid succession by the husky center proving the important shots of the session.

Midway in the second half, the Tartans once more took the lead at 26 to 25, and again the score was tied at 30-30. Tech led late in the game at 33 to 32 and then at 35 to 32, but Baldwin's long goal and Crowe's foul tied the score and then came Krause's game-winning but disputed shot. The big fellow had a point total of 17, gained on seven field goals and three fouls.

Bob Smith, of Tech, was the high-point getter for the Plaid, ringing up 11 points. Red Fergus had nine for second honors. The lineup:

RUBE WADDELL RISHER'S STAR

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

When death called Howard M. Risher, of Homestead, recently, it removed an unselfish sportsman and civic-minded citizen whose tireless efforts, among other things, helped to give baseball and other sports the high standing they occupy in the whole Pittsburgh section.

Lovers of baseball who can hark back to the days incident to the Turn of the Century always will have fond memories of the baseball and football teams of the Homestead Library Athletic Club or, more in keeping with the swing of the thing, the H. L. A. C.

Howard Risher's crack baseball team bore the title of semi-professional champions of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio and well it deserved this distinction. The independent baseball of the Risher era held the fans in a spell of admiration, partly on account of the attendant excitement and also because it was at this time that wonderful athletes like Rube Waddell and Honus Wagner were getting the polish that was to carry them from the sandlots to the major league halls of fame. It fell to the fortune of Howard Risher to put some of the finishing touches on the great Rube, whose slab feats remain unsurpassed—yes, unmatched.

PEARSON'S RARE FEAT

The H. L. A. C. team was such an attractive outfit it was in demand all over the district; indeed, the championship Pirates of 1903 found Risher's club such a formidable array it had to bow to the Homestead boys in a close and exciting battle played at Homestead on July 22, 1903.

Fred Clarke's gallant Buccos, after winning two flags, were leading the league and on their way to a third pennant when they ran afoul of the clever semi-pros. Wagner, Leach, Beaumont and the other luminaries found Alex Pearson and his buddies just as tough as their big league competitors. Pearson holding the top-notch performers to two hits as H. L. A. C. won, 3-2. A crowd of 2,500 saw the diamond classic.

DEVELOPS WADDELL

The box score of the game in question recalls pleasant memories. May Edmundson, Doc McCheney and other big favorites of that day helped to take the measure of the major leaguers. The event was given a big "play" by the Pittsburgh papers. A. C. Dinkey, general superintendent of the Carnegie mills of the period, was so happy over the outcome of the game he presented each and every member of the victorious club a gold coin.

Waddell's part in the baseball story of Homestead is real diamond drama. Risher cajoled the eccentric one into his fold shortly after the gangling country boy from the Butler sector had come into sandlot prominence, and Rube proceeded to advance rapidly.

A neat scrapbook kept by Donald Risher, son of the departed baseball pioneer, holds many of the startling accounts of Risher's team, including the exploits of the one and only Reuben.

SPEAKING OF STRIKEOUTS

With the doings of the 1898 club, for example, we find Rube, with his H. L. A. C. supporting cast, working three magnificent games against that other famed outfit of the Pittsburgh district—the D. C. & A. C. nine. The first game brought an 11-inning tie with a 2-2 score. Rube fanned 23 batters. A few days later, the same clubs played, and, after 13 innings of competition, the game was called with the issue deadlocked, 3-3. Waddell struck out 22 of the enemy. The third battle gave the great lefthander a 3-2 victory in regulation innings. Rube whiffed 15 hitters in the final. In other words, Waddell struck out 60 batters in the three games.

Many columns could be written on Howard Risher's clubs of 30 or more years ago. It was a day when sectional rivalry predominated—and perhaps another day is coming when sectional rivalry again will produce and support high-class clubs.

STOCK MARKET MOVEMENT IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—A further backwash of selling today followed yesterday's wave of liquidation in the stock market, but pressure subsided after the first hour.

By early afternoon the list was inclined to recover a little in spots, but rallies were mostly limited to fractions. Price cutting in various industries, appearing in automobile tires today, and dividend uncertainties, were depressing influences. An isolated bullish demonstration appeared in the gold mining issues, however.

The bullish flurry in the gold mining issues was evidently a repercussion of demonstrations in this group in British and Canadian markets. The South African mining shares recently boomed when South Africa departed from the gold standard, and the sag in the Canadian dollar has increased the premium received for the yellow metal by the Dominion producers.

Wall street was keenly interested in the huge reclamation project suggested by President-elect Roosevelt for the South. While official comment was withheld, bankers privately expressed various views. Electric power interests expressed unqualified disapproval of the public power development project, asserting that there is already excess generating capacity in the South. One prominent banker said such a project could not develop rapidly, but that it would serve a useful purpose in diverting public attention toward returning to the land.

The electric power issues were again soft in spots, although somewhat steadier than they have been in recent sessions. United Aircraft was sold on news that the Senate has disapproved the $19,000,000 air mail subsidy. American Telephone was again affected by continued loss of stations, although at a less rapid rate than last summer, and the approach of the dividend meeting, slated for February 15. General Motors and Du Pont, which has a large interest in it, reflected uncertainty over the dividend meeting Monday, although Wall street has been inclined to look for a regular 25 cent payment. Selling in Standard of New Jersey was a continuation of the movement started by omission of the extra dividend yesterday. Several oil companies which make interim reports showed improvement in the first three quarters of 1932, but Standard of New Jersey reports only annually.

WHEAT PRICES HOLD FIRM

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Unusual steadiness characterized grain values early today. Enlarged estimates of yesterday's export business in North American wheat were current, ranging upwards of 2,500,000 bushels, with European continental countries the chief buyer. Opening unchanged to ¼ off, wheat later made some advance. Corn started at a shade lower to a shade higher and subsequently held near the initial range.

A firm undertone in wheat values resulted, and helped to uphold corn and oats.

Provisions were easy, owing to a downward trend in the hog market.

Liquidation continued later in the morning, but there was a somewhat improved demand from the trade or commission house sources and prices held fairly steady. At midday May was selling around 5.90 with the general market showing net declines of 3 to 4 points.

From present indications the March 15 financing will be materially greater than the maturities, indicating another increase in the public debt. The Democratic administration will take over the Treasury with a public debt of around $21,000,000,000, and a deficit of about $1,350,000,000.

Of the total debt about half matures or is callable within the next year, the principal blocks being $8,201,313,050 in the first and fourth Liberty loans.

EXCHANGE BIG PROBLEM FOR BUSINESS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Corporations, whose operations are far flung, have under existing abnormal conditions been handicapped by the difficulty of transferring foreign income into dollar exchange.

The financial executive of one large industrial corporation told me that it is the policy to convert foreign exchanges into dollars as rapidly as possible, instead of accumulating foreign balances, thus the corporation at least knows where it stands on a gold basis. Such a policy is feasible only in countries where there is freedom from restrictions on transfer.

Mr. Rukeyser

Foreign branches under existing conditions are chiefly a liability. For example, absorption in 1932 of unrealized foreign exchange losses, aggregating $2,757,387, caused F. W. Woolworth's annual net profits in 1932 to fall below dividend requirements for the first time in the history of the company.

One of the great grocery chains, with its own bakeries, is undertaking an experiment in farm relief through promoting consumption of bread. Its method has been to reduce the price in the eastern territory. The effort is especially significant because the consumption of flour has decreased in the last year. Usually this does not occur in depressions, as bread is an especially cheap food.

If the reduction in price succeeds in broadening consumption, other factors in the trade are likely to follow suit. Family incomes have been so drastically reduced that housewives are extremely sensitive to price changes.

As a student of market places, I have recently been making an informal canvass of the prices at which produce is selling at retail in New York. Prices appear to be the lowest which this generation has experienced.

NATIONAL EARNS DIVIDEND

National Steel Corporation today reported earnings for 1932 equivalent to 77 cents a common share, or in excess of the 75-cent dividend payment during the period. Large increases in cash holdings and in current assets ratio during the year were also revealed, while bond interest was earned 1.78 times.

For the year to December 31, 1932, net earnings were $1,662,919 after all charges and federal tax, equivalent to 77 cents a share on 2,156,832 no-par common shares outstanding, while similar earnings for the three months ending the same date were $354,045. These figures compare with net earnings of $4,443,323 for the previous year and of $669,713 for the corresponding 1931 quarter.

Cash on hand at the year-end closely approximated $6,260,000, a 65 per cent increase over holdings of $3,755,000 at the end of the preceding year. The ratio of current assets to current liabilities doubled, from 4.7 to 1 at the beginning of the year, to approximately 9.4 to 1 at the closing date.

Bank of France.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows these changes in francs: gold decreased 139,000,000; sight balances abroad increased 4,000,000; bills discounted at home increased 535,00,000; bills bought abroad unchanged; advances decreased 20,000,000; circulation increased 288,000,000; current accounts increased 228,000,000. Rate of discount 2½ per cent.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Conflicting influences, both domestic and foreign, impeded progress in the bond market today and prices generally turned downward after various rallying flurries. Foreign issues were irregular. United States government securities were firm, but quiet.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

U. S.-EUROPEAN TRADE OFF IN 1932

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Exports from the United States during 1932 were lower in value to every country of the world excepting Greece and Brazil, while imports were lower for all countries but Egypt, the Commerce Department announced today.

In December, however, small gains were shown in exports to France, Sweden, Brazil, Colombia, the Philippine Islands and Australia. Imports were higher from Finland, Soviet Russia, Sweden, Central America, Netherlands East Indies, the Philippine Islands British South Africa and Egypt.

Total exports for the year were valued at $1,612,305,000, a decrease of $812,000,000 from 1931, while imports valued at $1,322,745,000 were $768,000,000 lower.

BRITAIN BEST CUSTOMER

The United Kingdom was the leading customer, taking American goods valued at $288,462,800, a reduction of $167,000,000 from the year before. Reductions in value and trade restrictions set up by London accounted for the loss.

Exports to Canada were valued at $241,424,700, a reduction of $155,000,000.

Russian sales dropped from $103,486,000 in 1931, to $12,466,200, chiefly due to the fact that the Soviet turned to Germany and other European countries for its requirements.

Japan ranked third, taking American goods valued at $132,537,300, a reduction of $21,000,000.

Germany made purchases of $133,471,800 in the United States, and France $111,561,700, a drop of $10,000,000.

Canada sold to the United States goods valued at $174,101,000, a reduction of $92,000,000; Japan, $134,011,300, a drop of $72,000,000; Brazil, $82,263,000, a decline of $28,000,000; the Philippine Islands, $80,877,400, a decrease of $7,000,000, and the United Kingdom, $74,688,700, a loss of $61,000,000.

Imports from Soviet Russia were small, valued at $9,096,800, a drop of $3,600,000 from 1931. Czechoslovakia, against which complaints of dumping had been made, sold the United States goods valued at but $13,019,800, a reduction of $10,100,000 from the year before. From France were imported goods valued at $44,736,000, lower by $34,400,000.

Scattered indicators of improved conditions after the turn of the year were reported by the department.

BAMBINO LISTS HIS GREATEST ACHIEVEMENTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—It isn't because he has read much of Rudyard Kipling's poems that Babe Ruth seldom has stopped to consider the work he has done.

The slugger whose exploits take up page after page of baseball's record books does not go in much for self-analysis or retrospection. Things happen to or for or against the Babe. He doesn't fuss about the reasons or live on reminiscences.

Consequently, it was somewhat like prying candy away from a small boy to get him to concentrate on an examination of his big league record and list as his most thrilling diamond experiences:

1—The 2-1 victory he pitched for the Red Sox over Brooklyn in the 1916 world series, holding the Dodgers scoreless after the first inning and beating Sherrod Smith in a 14-inning battle, longest game ever played in the championship round.

2—The one-hand running catch he made off Frankie Frisch for the last out in the fourth and last game of the 1928 world series, abruptly ending a desperate rally by the St. Louis Cardinals in their home park.

3—The dramatic home run he hit off Charley Root in the third game of the 1932 world series at Chicago, a tremendous clout over the center-field barrier, his second of the game and a blow that knocked Root out of the box besides knocking the last, lingering resistance out of the Cubs.

WOMEN CLASH FOR TITLE

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Two Westerners, Mrs. Opal S. Hill, of Kansas City, and Mrs. Estelle Drennan, of Tulsa, Okla., have advanced to the final round of the Miami-Biltmore women's golf tournament.

Miss Bea Gottlieb, of New York, a star competitor in several Florida tournaments, was defeated by Mrs. Hill, 7 and 6, yesterday as the Kansas City shotmaker continued the spectacular golf she played in earlier rounds.

Mrs. Drennan registered a 7 and 5 victory over Miss Agnes Wayne, of Miami, and today will play Mrs. Hill for the championship. The winner will be awarded a leg on the Grace Doherty silver trophy, offered for three victories in the event.

Stars Crack Par In Florida Tourney

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Close matches with subpar scores featured the second round of the national championship of golf club champions yesterday as eight favorites marched to the quarter-finals.

The hardest-fought battle of the day saw R. L. Miller, national public links champion, from Jacksonville, down Tommy Goodwin, of Monroe, N. Y., by a one-hole margin.

Jack Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., tournament medalist, trounced Don Soccoli, New Britain, Conn., 2 and 1.

Chicago Amateurs Beat Canal Boxers

COLON, Panama, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—A visiting team of the Catholic youth organization of Chicago won five out of eight bouts from Canal Zone Army and Navy boxers before a crowd of 6,000, including ranking Army and Navy officials at the naval base at Coco Solo last night.

All the bouts went the scheduled three rounds, with the Canal Zone fighters winning only in the lightweight, middleweight and light-heavyweight divisions.

Ohio Pro Stars Win At Miami

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 2.—(AP.)—Only 18 players entered a scheduled pro-pro team tournament at the Miami Springs course yesterday, so the event was turned into one day of medal competition, with Jimmy Noonan, of Chicago, and Wilson Crain, of Akron, O., carding 37-30—67 to win first prize of $20.

Professionals who entered the play are spending the winter here.

Former Buc Stars Applaud Rosey's Broadcasts

Pleasant echoes from his chain radio broadcasts are being daily received by A. K. (Rosey) Rowswell, Pittsburgh homorist and fervid Pirate fan. Rosey smiled today over messages of congratulation from two popular Buccos of the 1925 championship outfit.

Lee Meadows and Emil Yde, two big winners on the slab in the year the Buccos topped the world's title, listened in on Rosey at their Leesburg, Fla., home. Lee and Emil have been pals in the winter months since they were teammates in Pittsburgh.

Meadows has decided to leave baseball. Lee is in line for a State job in Florida, it is reliably reported. Yde, a member of the Hollywood club of the Pacific Coast League, is employed in Leesburg in the winter months.

Along with the felicitations to Rosey came a crate of oranges.

CUP NET DRAW ANNOUNCED

PARIS, Feb. 2.—(AP.)—The United States today was paired with Mexico in the first round of the North American Zone of the Davis Cup draw, presided over by President Albert Lebrun, of France, and attended by the diplomats of many nations.

The luck of the draw paired the other two entries in the North American zone—Canada and Cuba—in the first round, with the winner meeting the victor of the Mexico-United States matches for the right to play the winner of the South American zone.

The draw for the international tennis competition was made in the Ambassador's Salon of the Elysee Palace, with Ambassador Walter E. Edge representing the United States.

Members of France's defending team, Henri Cochet, Jacques Brugnon and Jean Borotra, were interested spectators.

Germany, winner of the European Zone last year, was drawn against Egypt in the first round, while England, which challenged France for the coveted trophy two years ago, was paired with Spain.

Australia, with a team rated high in pre-play talk, drew a bye in the lower bracket of the draw. Japan, also considered one of the outstanding possibilities, was paired with the powerful Hungary team.

Other pairings in the European Zone include: Finland-India; Belgium-Austria; Italy-Jugoslavia; Poland-Holland; and Denmark-Ireland. Greece, Rumania, Monacco, Czecho-Slovakia in the upper half of the draw and Norway, South Africa and Switzerland in the lower bracket drew byes.

In the South American Zone draw, made last October, the winner of Chile-Brazil match meets Uruguay, while Argentine plays Peru. Brazil won the zone championship last year, but lost five straight matches to the United States in the inter-zone final.

Jeannette Gridders Honored at Banquet

JEANNETTE, Pa., Feb. 2.—Fifty members of the Jeannette High School football squad, 1932 Westmoreland County champions and co-titalists with New Castle and McKeesport in class AA of the W. P. I. A. L., were honored at the annual banquet of the squad, held in Odd Fellows Hall last night.

Jacob Elpern, of Greensburg, in behalf of the Westmoreland County Coaches' Association, presented the champions a silver cup. James (Whitey) Hagan, assistant athletic director at Pitt, gave the W. P. I. A. L. trophy to the squad.

Brief remarks were made by Markley Barnes, Jeannette coach; Pat Rigney, assistant coach, and J. M. Maclay, high school principal. Pete Holleran, captain of the squad, accepted the trophies.

Twenty-nine squad members and Manager Ted Rice were awarded letters.

School Children Ahoy! Name This Feature And Win a Prize

Scissors of school children that snipped pictures out of many library books and periodicals—and mothers' favorite magazines as well—will be devoted henceforth to other uses.

The Sun-Telegraph today, in the adjoining columns, presents a department designed to assist the city's public and parochial schools in their visual education program—and incidentally to reduce the mortality among books and periodicals which oughtn't to be chopped up.

Visual education is based on the fact that illustration of all sorts of subjects by pictures is one of the most effective methods of instruction. How pupils may find pictures which they may cut out and hand in with the homework, the compositions which are to be illustrated, is a real problem. Small wonder that many pupils, in their zeal, resorted to forbidden scarcely-suitable sources, such as library books and magazines.

In order to provide a less troublesome method of picture supply, the Pittsburgh schools, both public and parochial, have approved an arrangement by which the Sun-Telegraph will print daily a selection of pictures which the pupils may clip and do no harm.

Presentation of these pictures, in collaboration with the schools' instructors, will be synchronized with the subjects assigned in the class room, insofar as possible. Every picture, with its accompanying caption, will be checked and approved by the schools before publication.

No name has been selected for the department. It will be chosen by the pupils themselves, each one submitting his suggestion to his teacher.

For the pupil who submits the most appropriate title there will be a prize—and he will have the additional distinction of winning for his particular school another prize, such as a first-class reference book. This title and the winner will be announced both in the Sun-Telegraph and in the schools—possibly next week.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER JUNIOR COMIC CLUB

Thrills! Thrills! Thrills!

Yes, sir, boys and girls you are going to get plenty of thrills Saturday, when most of the theaters where the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club starts a new serial, "The Lost Special."

The "Lost Special" was written by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, famous writer of mystery stories and Ernie Nevers, famous football player, shares the leading honors with Frank Albertson. Supporting them will be Cecilia Parker and Caryn Lincoln.

To help stop a run on a bank owned by a life long friend of Frank Albertson's father, Frank sends $1,000,000 on a special train to tide the bank over. Bandits derail the train and when the railroad authorities reach the place where the wreck took place they could not find any trace of the gold or the train. Both had disappeared The way Ernie Nevers and Frank Albertson with the assistance of the two girls recover the gold and the train will have all of the youngsters sitting on the edge of their seats.

On account of the feature picture, "Strange Interlude," opening at the Enright next Saturday, the Junior Comic Klub meeting has been moved forward and the doors of the Enright will open at 9:30 a. m. for a free show which will last more than two hours. Manager Frank Roberts, who has been away most of the summer, wanted to do something for the youngsters when he returned, but this is the first opportunity he has had, and he is going to make the most of it. The show, which will consist of more than an hour and 30 minutes of vaudeville, will also feature a current newsreel and three short comedies. All with the compliments of Manager Frank Roberts.

CREED FOR THE TIRED TYCOON

"Heed the ant and do likewise"
Makes appeal to earnest guys
Who fuss and fiddle day and night
Till every little thing is right;
But while they strive and sweat and slave
And dig themselves an early grave
The chances are some lazy turk
Takes all the credit for their work.

Maybe you must "do it now,"
Adding furrows to your brow,
Yet if you would die today
Things would go the same old way;
And there'd be another's face
Shining daily in your place,
All his efforts bent on chores
Just as futile as were yours.

A Golfer Yearns for Sunshine

We're finally forced into the judicial opinion that golf is malicious mischief with intent to please.

When asked his occupation recently in court a witness replied with modulated gusto, "I tilt the soil."

The judge responded, on a much reduced income, "You mean you till the soil. You're a farmer?"

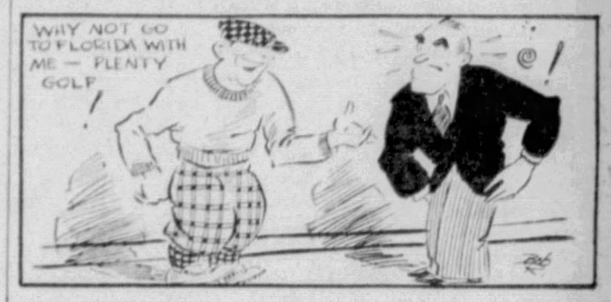
The man rebuttled without visible effort. "No, I tilt it. I'm a golfer."

Of all the boys who tilt the soil we hate the ones who can go to Florida in January and hamburger the turf.

We saw one of those turnips climb on the train yesterday in New York. The weather was so cold people were breathing like snapping turtles.

But there he was smiling like a kitten posing for a milk poster. He had six golf bags modestly distributed on his back, was wearing pants and sox that would flag a train around a sharp bend and was as happy as a witch on a new broom.

We wished we had our boxing gloves on so we could have smacked him goodbye. We have always craved the luxury of golfing in December on the sunny slopes of California or Florida. But we never get any closer to it than a travel folder.



When he waved goodbye to us our lip curled in civic scorn. We refused to grunt farewell to the coward. There he will be down South in the sunshine while we will be carrying on in the frozen North with nothing but a hot stove between us and the janitor's steam heat.

We'll make it some day. They tell us a man's game is 10 strokes better in California in the sunshine, the ocean breezes and with the birds twittering. That last item is one we'll have to complain about.

Those birds can drive us nuts on Long Island. They say there is one Florida warbler that can make a golfer top a grapefruit with a big spoon.

We hope to make the trip next winter. Let the birds twitter all they want. They can't be any worse than sleigh bells.

Protect the Ballot!

Pressure Should Be Brought to Bear on the Legislature to Improve the Election Laws.

The Pennsylvania Elections Association is encouraged by the difficulty that the Republican state organization has met with in its effort to abolish the direct primary, and, thus encouraged, the association has renewed its efforts to persuade the Legislature to improve the election laws.

Perhaps the association is encouraged, too, by Senator James J. Coyne's change of front. Coyne, it will be remembered, persuaded the Republican delegation from Allegheny County, at a caucus, to lay on the table Senator Frank J. Harris' resolution pledging the delegation to work for honest elections. A few days later Coyne, taking cognizance of the public indignation at his stand, announced that he would not oppose "reasonable" election reforms.

Coyne and the Republican state organization should be put to the test, and probably will be within the next few weeks; for Senator Harris plans to introduce bills favored by the Elections Association for the protection of the ballot.

How urgently such protection is needed is shown by Allegheny County's experience with election crooks, who went to shocking lengths last November in their attempt to steal the election from some of the successful Democratic candidates.

It may be that the Elections Association will not be able to carry out its entire legislative program; but certainly the provision for permanent registration, to keep off of the rolls the thousands of phantoms that bob up in every primary, should be enacted. The present system was devised in the interest of politicians. It not only facilitates the enrollment of phantoms, but makes voting difficult for the independent voter.

Under the law proposed by the Elections Association the citizen, after being listed, will not be required to register again, provided he continues to reside in the same election district.

"The changes which we propose," says Senator Harris, "will never harm any candidate or voter who wishes the majority to prevail. They are distasteful only to men whose interest is selfish."

Pressure should be brought to bear on the Legislature by civic bodies and individual citizens for the enactment of the corrective measures which Pennsylvania, and particularly Allegheny County, needs so badly.

There is nothing more important in a democracy than that votes shall be cast and counted honestly.

In Union, Economy

Consolidation of School Districts Offers a Way to Save Money Without Curtailing Education.

Two school districts in Allegheny County—Ben Avon Heights and Kilbuck Township—have no schools, but send their children to adjoining districts.

Sixty-four of the 104 districts over which County Superintendent C. E. Dickey has jurisdiction do not maintain high schools, but send their children to the high schools of other districts and pay tuition fees. This arrangement sometimes leads to trouble, as when school children of Chalfant Borough were barred from the Union High School at Turtle Creek because of the failure of the Chalfant School Board to pay $1,500 tuition fees.

Dr. James N. Rule, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, declares the necessity for payment of high school tuition charges to other districts is working extreme hardship on many Pennsylvania school units. In some non-high school districts payments for high school tuition amount to as much as 75 per cent of the total school tax receipts.

The remedy lies in consolidation of the school districts into larger units. It is extravagant to maintain as separate administrative units, with their own boards of education, school districts which do not maintain schools, or not enough schools to take care of the educational requirements of the children. Good roads and motor busses make consolidation practical. In union, economy will be found, as well as strength.

The consolidation proposal offers a plan by which money can be saved for the school taxpayer without curtailing education.

Sunday Sports Nearer

The Senate Will Be Flouting Public Sentiment If It Fails to Go Along With the House.

Sunday sports were brought nearer in Pennsylvania yesterday by the passage by the House of Representatives on first reading of the Schwartz local option bill for modification of the Blue Law.

The House Committee on Law and Order gave the advocates of the Blue Law fair play by holding a public hearing on the Schwartz bill before reporting it with a favorable recommendation.

Those who would continue to impose sabbatarian shackles on the people and thus to deprive them of the right to engage in innocent amusements presented a poor case. They declared that modification of the Blue Law would bring all kinds of evils in its train. How absurd such an assertion is can be judged from conditions in the numerous states which do not have Blue Laws.

It seems certain that the House will do its part to free the people from at least some of the restrictions of this superannuated statute, but the Senate is reported to be doubtful.

The Senate will be flouting public sentiment if it fails to go along.

Less Stream Pollution

It Is Gratifying to Learn the Improvement Is Not Solely Due to Industrial Inactivity.

The drought from which Allegheny County has been suffering for several years continues. The rainfall and snowfall in January were far below normal. Only twice in 49 years has the precipitation during the first month of the year been less.

Formerly the deficiency in precipitation would have aggravated the foulness of the rivers. Because of industrial inactivity, however, the mills and mines are not discharging the usual amount of poisonous waste matter into the rivers. Analyses of Allegheny River water have shown a large reduction in the sulphuric acid content.

Happily, the abatement of stream pollution is not solely due to the business slump. Dr. Theodore B. Appel, secretary of the Department of Health, reports that more and more bituminous coal operators whose mines are suitable are adopting the principle of impounding their mine waters for the reduction of its acidity.

Public Enemy No. 1

Not long ago the National Education Association completed an extensive study of crime in its relation to education.

This survey ascertained that it costs $300 a year to keep a man in prison and less than $100 a year to keep a child in school.

Officials who want to curtail education for the sake of a little economy should keep these figures in mind.

False economy which restricts education means more juvenile delinquency—and more juvenile delinquency means more crime.

The War Debts and Their Relation to Business

By BAINBRIDGE COLBY
Former Secretary of State.

Third Installment of an Address Delivered Before the National Retail Dry Goods Association in New York City.

There is no solution of the war debts except by their liquidation. As a factor in world economy they are eliminated by their transfer as an obligation from Europe to America. As an obstruction to world recovery they will not be removed by shifting their incidence. Two men cannot be said to be richer if one assumes the other's debt.

From the American standpoint the effect of their remission would be a definite addition to our public debt of $11,000,000,000. The annual interest charge which today is $300,000,000 and which, under the funding agreements, gradually increases, must be deducted from our estimated national income and will increase by that amount our tax burden. This, in turn, means a reduction by the same amount in the purchasing power of our people.

But we are told there are countervailing benefits of a derivative and indirect character which, if properly appraised, will more than offset these results.

* * *

Cannot Be Expected To Renounce Claims

If this is the fact, it should be susceptible of demonstration. The American people cannot be expected to renounce claims of such amounts and validity—to disregard equities which have their roots in the sacrifices of our people, and in a generosity which has no parallel in history—for purely conjectural or vaguely anticipated considerations.

When the moratorium of 1931 was announced, it was greeted with acclaim. The stock market staged a brief return engagement—very brief—in the most popular piece in its repertory, a bull market with resumed pool operations, manipulated advances and all the old footlight favorites. But after a very short run the REALITIES of the situation again took the stage.

We then witnessed the deepest and most precipitious decline in security and commodity values that had been recorded in the entire course of the depression.

* * *

Advocates of Sacrifice Appear Spellbound

Now, if our trade is to be benefited by relieving Europe's budgets of the annual payments due us, can it reasonably be apprehended that, with more than 40 nations on a depreciated currency basis and favored by low-wage scales, any increase in Europe's purchasing power will be turned into the American market, with our higher production costs due to our stable currency and higher wage and living standards?

It seems to me that this is quite an idle expectation.

On the other hand, how can we, with our grave unemployment problem and the prostrate position of many of our industries, hope to restore either employment or industry if we open still wider our gates to the influx of cheap foreign merchandise?

The advocates of a policy of FURTHER SACRIFICE by the American people in their treatment of the debts seem to be under the spell of certain economic catch-words which do not square with present-day realities.

* * *

Foreign Lending Gives False Stimulus

Of course, transfers are facilitated by credit balances, but how are credit balances to be built up in the face of the established trends of present world commerce?

Of course, foreign lending imparted a very marked, but, we now learn, a very costly and false stimulus to our exports in recent years. But this could not continue indefinitely.

If debt remission is to be treated as analogous to foreign lending, and justified on that theory, it will find little support from the holders of Europe's private debts, already deeply worried about their position.

There is still to be considered the question of our position as a competitor for world markets—is it helped or hurt?

It can hardly be denied our competitive basis would be FUNDAMENTALLY CHANGED by the assumption of Europe's debt. Not only would the budgets of the debtor nations be instantly lightened, but in the same amount, ours would be instantly weighted.

* * *

Would Increase Production Costs

The potential purchasing power of their people would be augmented and the purchasing power of the American people would be diminished by the same amount.

Already at a great disadvantage in our struggle to cope with their low production costs, we would find our production costs increased by new and undeserved additions to the tax burden, even now so severe a handicap to American business revival.

You ask—what is the answer? Have we reached an impasse? Is the problem beyond human faculty?

NOT BY ANY MEANS.

It may have to be approached from a new angle. It may require some variation of formula.

But unless default has lost its stigma among men, and honor is no longer SENSITIVE, but has become CALLOUS, the solution CAN and WILL BE FOUND.

* * *

Even Frenchmen Protest Default

Let us remember that even in France—so ill-served by the politicians who compose her present Parliament—the protest against her default has not been stilled.

When the French Parliament after its refusal to pay the installment due us on December 15 of $19,000,000, approved a loan of $14,000,000 to Austria, a leading organ of French opinion asked:

"Did we refuse our millions to the United States, to whom we owe SOMETHING, if only GRATITUDE, to give them to Austria, to whom we owe NOTHING except the SHELLS SHE FIRED AT US?"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Jewelry auction rooms continue to pulsate a glitter along Broadway and Forty-second street, despite rather shady implications. Their wordy enthusiasms, like sudden spasms of alarm clocks, invariably attract the passers-by. The auctioneers are remarkable actors.

Their talent for timing the punch of a salestalk is uncanny. From the tail of an eye, they see the wavering indecision of a customer and, apparently talking to no one in particular, they jolt him into buying. About each shop is a delirious and hilarious altruism.

Posters inflame windows with incredible bargains. Everything positively must be sold this week, no matter the cost, although they have occupied the same stand for years. In the doorways are a few cappers who act as bell wethers for the following sheep.

Long ago, auctioneers discovered that no person will step into an empty room. Ice must be broken by the cappers. Once inside, the stranger is like the deer. You can coax him to you, but one sudden movement and he's off to cover. It is a study in psychology to hold him and make him buy.

* * *

Among the genialities passing with time, in New York, is the Irish waiter. About the only ones left seem to be at Jack Kennedy's, Dinty Moore's and Billy the Oysterman's. They have not the alert obeisance of the French, Italian and Greek, but have gristle-like dependability that is warming. They suggest the hospitality that passed with the old-fashioned hotel desk's quill pen resting in small shot.

* * *

Many sturdy eating havens now are shuttered. Among them is Daly's, so long of West Fifty-ninth street. It employed peroxided waitresses, who, after several visits, might call a patron "Dearie." The proprietor drifted from table to table and inquired about things. Cafeterias sounded the death knell of such places.

* * *

In Daly's, several years ago, a bluff old customer at an adjoining table was approached by a demure salvationist. She murmured: "Will you please give a dollar to the Lord?" Not unkindly, he inquired: "Sister, how old are you?" She replied that she was 26. So he said: "Well, I'm 59 and I'll likely see Him first and present it in person." Then, having had his joke, he called her back and gave her a $5 bill.

George S. Kaufman, tall, thin, bespectacled and pompadoured in vertical austerity, wanders the Rialto with the greatest detachment of any of its favorite children. Now and then his face is illuminated by a quick, forced smile. But most of the time he suggests melancholy. His devotion to the theater is consuming. Although responsible for several hit plays and earner of an income reputed to be $7,000 a week, he keeps a dramatic job on a morning paper, taking frequent leaves. Almost nightly he may be found among the theater rail-birds studying some bit of a performance.

* * *

Next to that of Kaufman, the starchiest pompadour in town was worn by Harold Ross, head man of the New Yorker. All of a sudden, it flattened into a side part. Several stories are told as to the why of the change. One is, he was lunching at the Algonquin. From another table, Dorothy Parker sent this note: "Do you mind if I go wading in your hair?" Anyway, a little later, the pompadour vanished.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Sweet and Lowdown

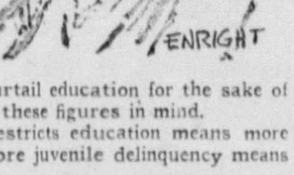
Perhaps there is nothing quite so tender and so all-EMBRACING as a man's sympathy for a misunderstood woman—if she's young enough, blonde enough and pretty enough.

* * *

It doesn't take a bride long to discover that she has married three utterly different types of men; the one she thinks she has, the one that she tells her friends she has—and the one (Alas!) that her friends KNOW she has.

* * *

The average young man thinks of marriage as the dry-dock into which he may finally permit himself to be towed—after he is weary of "seeing the world," catering to the flesh and tempting the devil.



One of the hardest things that every modern girl has to learn is the art of turning down a man's cheap and unwelcome love-making with that "It-hurts-me-more-than-it-does you!" expression. But most of us are skilled actresses, these days.

* * *

Two things which a man just snatches at random, but which a woman selects with the utmost care (and for which she will pay any price) are love—and a new hat.

* * *

It's pretty hard for even a fickle lover to destroy a woman's faith in life or a beneficent Providence, as long as she has a dependable beauty specialist and a good "permanent."

Even in these days men are not utterly unimpressionable. A girl seldom has to plead a "previous engagement" more than six or eight times before it dawns on a man that she is not positively pining to see him.

* * *

"Stealing another woman's husband," says Reno Ruth, "is just petty larceny. Because, while a man may stray of his own accord, no husband worth over two cents can ever be stolen."

* * *

The die-hard bachelor's notion of an ideal love-affair is one that ends—just short of the altar.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Buried Treasure,

Buried treasure! Buried treasure!
How it makes the pulses leap.
Thought of treasure long forgotten,
Hidden in a shining heap!

Golden doubloons, buried deeply,
Stolen in a foreign land,
Blood-stained, death-cursed, passion-tainted,
Booty of a pirate band.

Sun-flecked amber, grass-green emeralds,
Opals with a changeful fire,
Pearls as pure as childhood's fancies,
Rubies burning like desire.

Fitful, dream-filled is their slumber,
Though no footfall vex their rest;
In the dark of earth's cold bosom
Still they long for beauty's breast!

Buried treasure, buried treasure,
Waiting through the slow years' night
For the clutch of grasping fingers,
Wine and laughter, song and light!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

It is hard for Edith to remember a time when she didn't despise her mother. Of course she loved her, too. Queer how one can love and despise a person at the same time. But always there was that growing contempt. How could she help it—with such a Mother?

Mothers, Edith felt, should be wonderful! Brave and patient, sweet and loyal. One ought to be able to worship one's mother. But who could worship a mother who was always complaining, nagging, fault-finding, whining to the neighbors about how badly her children treated her?

"But why shouldn't I complain?" cries Edith's mother indignantly. "Look how marvelous some children are to their mothers. My children are never like that to me. They never consider my feelings. Yet I've worked myself to skin and bone."

And so it goes! Rebellious children. Resentful mothers. Home life one long brawl and battle! Miserable situation—yet you've seen it scores of times. Perhaps lived in it.

But why do families get that way? What's the answer? The answer is so simple that most of us overlook it.

FAMILIES GET THAT WAY BECAUSE THEY'RE ALL TRYING TO LIVE UP TO A LIE—AND THE STRAIN IS TOO MUCH FOR EVERYONE CONCERNED.

It all began with the silly tradition that put mothers on pedestals. Which, of course, was and is very flattering to Mama herself.

But, unfortunately, mothers were not intended to occupy pedestals. They have all the normal human cussedness and silliness, and a healthy need to express the same. Nothing could possibly cramp a Mother's style worse than a pedestal. Yet Society insists that she belongs on one, and Mama herself, naturally believes that she rates one—and her children feel she should live up to one. So then what?

SO THEN, MAMA GETS MAD IF HER CHILDREN DON'T ACT LIKE A SAINT; AND BETWEEN THEM THEY MAKE A BEDLAM OF WHAT MIGHT BE THE HAPPIEST HOME.

All of which could be averted if we'd treat Mothers as People—and if Mothers, themselves, would consent to act as People.

Actually, in her secret heart, that's how every mother wants to be treated. She isn't a saint, and she knows it. She longs to express her loneliness and bewilderment, her silliness, cowardice and conceit, as other people do—and be loved and petted and kidded as other people are, in return.

And, in their secret hearts, that is how her children wish to treat her. After the first baby years have passed, the modern youngster needs a comrade far more than he needs a mother—a dear, commonplace, human comrade who won't sit in judgment or "pull an act," but will walk with him, shoulder to shoulder, through the difficult years.

That's what mothers really want. That's what youngsters really want. Yet that old stupid tradition of the pedestal still separates and estranges them. Mother goes through life expecting to be treated like a demigod, exasperated with her children because they won't treat her like one—yet unable to act like one. And her children go through life expecting her to act like one—and exasperated because she won't!

What's the cure?

Cut out the hokum! Face facts!

Mothers are People. They weren't made to be saints.

If you're a mother, BE YOUR BIOLOGY!! Don't try to rate as a saint. You know you can't get by with it. And don't get mad if your children won't treat you as one.

If you're a son or daughter, remember your mother is a person. Those lovely virtues which you think mothers should possess would doubtless make matters most convenient and delightful for you. But they'd raise Cain with any female's natural disposition.

So don't expect out of your mother a standard of behavior which you couldn't possibly endure for an hour yourself. Don't feel abused just because she won't fit your pretty picture of what A Mother Ought To Be. Take her as she is, and treat her as you'd treat any other worried human in need of your love and understanding—TREAT HER AS YOU'D LIKE TO BE TREATED YOURSELF!

LIVE AND LET LIVE—that's old, old advice. But it's still the Best Medicine for what ails most mothers and children.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

There is much talk by youth on "being independent."

"Don't sink your individuality" and "show your personality" are phrases that are heard among the "moderns" on every hand.

Not a word about how to live and co-operate with other human beings.

It is all about how to make your ego get ahead of the other fellow's.

Personality first and foremost—be a good little self-advertiser.

Thrust out your chest and show your good opinion of yourself and your own ability and meet the world that way.

There are thousands doing that very thing today who have nothing to back them and their attitude but their outside show.

They have not brains enough to know that that is not all there is to it.

They have the "gift of gab" and "been places and seen things."

That is youth trying to convince the world.

But did you ever know a big executive to act so pompously?

Some have tried it, but in the long run they have run out.

The most shallow persons are the greatest noise makers.

Text For Today Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; the soul that sinneth, it shall die.—Ezekiel, xviii:4.

WORDS PLENTIFUL

By Winifred Black

Forty thousand words—that's the average vocabulary in America today. So declares Dr. William D. Boutwell, of the United States office of education. And the average doctor, lawyer and newspaperman has a vocabulary of 45,000 words.

Ah, indeed, Dr. Boutwell. Now ain't that jes' grand?

I wish they'd use some of the words sometimes; don't you?

I'm getting a little tired of elegant and grand and swell and rotten, and oh, if I could stop hearing about "guys" and "birds" for just one fleeting hour, it would be so very nice!

So nice and so soothing, don't you think?

Ask the average young man how he liked the play he has just seen, and before he opens his youthful lips to speak you know that he has just two words with which to characterize the burning effort of some hopeful brain.

The play to him is simply either "swell" or "rotten."

It is never "dull" or "brilliant." It is never "dramatic" or "startling."

It is never "witty" or "stupid."

It is just "rotten" or it is "swell"—and out of these two cryptic words you must make the best you can.

I'm sort of tired of the "boy friend" and the "girl friend," too, aren't you? Why do not some of these owners of the amazing vocabularies think of something besides "boy friend?"

People who do not know the latest dance step and who are in quick at the game of wise-cracking—oh, they're "just dumb-bells, or duds"—no matter how wise or competent or clear headed they may be otherwise.

What's the difference between a boob and a slob and a mutt?

I once heard a two-hour discussion along this line.

The mutt, it was decided was usually thin and a little shabby. The boob, on the other hand, was round faced and moon eyed and wore goodish clothes.

The slob—oh, he must be fat and slovenly and his hat is always either too large or too small.

Boobs, slobs, guys and birds throng our streets and we don't know one from the other.

Polish up your vocabularies, gentlemen and brothers of the press, medicine and bar. We're all aching for a little desperately needed variety.
